County examines Bosshard verdict

No decisions were formulated and no action taken when county commissioners met with County Attorney Norman Manning and his assistant Bill Stubblefield, as well as Austin attorney Ed Small and County Sheriff August Bosshard in closed session Friday afternoon to discuss a civil suit verdict against Bosshard, two of his deputies and a jailer.

Damages totaling $99,000 were awarded the family of a man who died in the county jail when jurors found the four county employees had been negligent in their duties.

Although Small, defense attorney in the suit, was closeted with the county officials for nearly an hour, and the 2 p.m. meeting continued until 3:30 p.m., official comment was "no comment."

The six jurors in Judge Jack Roberts' federal district court awarded the damages Wednesday to the parents, wife and three children of Jimmie Darrell Fielder, a Round Rock painter who died while a prisoner in the Williamson County Jail in Georgetown. The plantiffs had alleged in a civil suit that Bosshard, Chief Deputy Daniel J. Walker. Deputy William Chandler and Jailer Bob Champion violated Fielder's constitutional rights by denying him

medical attention during the night of July 4,

BOSSHARD SAID Wednesday he would appeal the decision. Small gave notice immediately after the verdict was read that he would file a motion with Roberts for judgement not withstanding the negligent verdict. This leaves the road open for the appeal, which would go to the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Small explained that the motion before Roberts, if accepted, would declare the Williamson County defendants not liable, despite the verdict, "because we feel the evidence was insufficient to warrant the verdict.

"The suit was based on failure to provide medical treatment. We don't think there's any evidence that medical treatment was necessary

"We feel like the burden of proof was on the plaintiff."

Small called no defense witnesses during the trial, explaining that Bosshard and the other defendants, who were their own chief

Livestock Assoc. resists disbanding, to reorganize

Despite efforts to dishand the Williamson County Fair and Snow Association as a result of a Taylor Chamber of Commerce decision to abandon support of a one-county livestock show, the county-wide organization refused Association President Calvin Rinn's proposal that the group disperse.

Directors urged their president to recall that their organization was formed of representatives from throughout the county to unite the two livestock shows now held in the county, in Taylor and Georgetown, into one countywide event

"We told him we still planned to have a show, since we have directors from each school district," reported Carl Lidell of Georgetown. "And he said if that was the case he would resign.

"Someone accepted the motion and immediately there were about four or five seconds."

Now that Kissinger has persuaded Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith to give that country back to the native Africans I hope he doesn't show up here demanding that we turn Williamson County back to the Tonkawas, our native Americans. This proposition of searching for the original and rightful owner can be carried too far.

GEORGETOWN, for the first time in modern history, has surged past Taylor in school errollment. Our latest total was 2,586 compared to Taylor's public school enrollment, of 2,249. Taylor also has a Catholic school with an enrollment of 211, which, combined with the public school, still falls short of the total here. Round Rock, on the other hand, has more than both Taylor and Georgetown combined, an amazing 5,355 with more coming in every day.

Georgetown badly needs to develop or be lucky enough to be the recipient of some industrial plants that add not just people but a sound tax base. It is difficult to support a school program on taxes from residential and retail business property.

My friend of more than 40 years, Joe McCook, Jr., suffered a minor coronary Wednesday night and was rushed to the intensive care department of Brackenridge Hospital. Dr. Gaddy told me Thursday that Joe had responded well to treatment and would be "just fine." A big bunch of us guys who love him and depend on him sure hope so. If all goes well, I understand, he will be back in Georgetown by early next week.

Public opinion asked on $2.3 million budget

Firmly in the black, Williamson County's proposed $2.3 million budget for the upcoming year represents a $55,073 increase over this year's spending plan — an increase more than offset by a revenue hike which could near the $540,000-mark.

Persons wishing to study the budget, which county commissioners will consider in public hearing Monday at 10 a.m., may examine the proposal in County Auditor Ben Kurio's first floor office. Commissioners will hear comments from any interested persons during the finance hearing in their first-floor courtroom Monday.

An unexpectedly high jump in county property valuations pushed tax revenues up not only from last year's expected $784,000, but also from the $740,000 which, in August, county officers were estimating would be received from taxpayers this year, to the $902,221.38 figured on the official county tax roll approved this month

NOT ONLY TAX REVENUE — which continues to increase despite commissioners' recent nickel reduction in county property taxes — but the ever-growing officers' salary fund have contributed to the county's sound financial footing.

An expected $484,000 will flow into the fund

as a result of fees collected by such county officers as the peace justices, clerks and tax assessor. Increased by an estimated $250,000 year-end balance, this growing fund will easily take care of $491,800 worth of officers' and their deputies' salaries for the year.

County roads will be well kept, with revenues $989.261 expected to be available for road and bridge purposes.

Under a new plan, the money will not be equally split among the four precincts as has recently been the procedure.

Precinct 1, including the Georgetown area, will be receiving a budgeted $281,168 during the year as a result of the uneven split of the road and Bridge Common Fund as well as the Farmto-Market and Lateral Roads fund. Other county income earmarked for road construction and repair, including the $175,000 collected in vehicle registration fees and state lateral road funding. — will be evenly divided among the

In comparison to the $281 thousand budgeted for Precinct 1, the Florence Precinct 2, which covers area immediately west of Georgetown, can expect $240,544 in road and bridge funding. For the Granger-area Precinct 3, which took the largest cut as a result of the uneven split, $227,003 has been budgeted. Precinct 4, Taylor, will receive funding equal to that designated for Precinct 2.

INCLUDED in the budget, as approved when commissioners met to consider county officers' requests, is a monthly $50 across-the-board salary hike for the county's 140-plus employees, a $100,000 transfer to the permanent improvement fund for construction of a countywide livestock show building, and provisions for the juvenile probation officer and central dispatch system which the county is operating under grant programs.

Cater firm drops suit against Foust

G&M Catering Service, Inc., of Austin has agreed to drop a $10,000 libel suit it filed against Williamson County Commissioner Wesley Foust in July in connection with charges stemming from the 1975 Willie Nelson Fourth of July picnic held in Liberty Hill.

In a joint motion pending before Travis County's 53rd District Court, the catering company and Foust together seek dismissal of the suit, without effect on G&M's concurrent libel suit against the three corporations which own and publish the Austin American-Statesman.

THE MOTION has not been granted yet, but a clerk for the Austin court said the judge was attending a conference and might not have had time to consider the motion. Foust's attorney, Jack Garey, said dismissal would be "just a perfunctory matter."

The catering company charged Foust with libel, slander and malicious prosecution after he unsuccessfully sued G&M for violation of the Texas Mass Gatherings Act following Nelson's concert.

Parade added to homecoming activities Friday

Something new has been added to homecoming activities.

This year the Georgetown High School Student Council is sponsoring a homecoming parade Friday, October I.

The parade will begin at 4 p.m. in San Gabriel Park, go around the square and end up back in the park.

Decorated vehicles or floats for each homecoming queen nominee plus vehicles for varsity football players and cheerleaders will be entered. A minimum of 24 entries is planned.

"This is not an entry-type thing. It's closed to general entries. It is only for homecoming queen nominees, football players and cheerleaders," she explained.

"We are encouraging people to come out and see it, so be out on the square or along the parade route," she urged.

The fighting Georgetown Eagles take on the Taylor Ducks at 8 p.m. Friday at Eagle field.

Scenic Drive extension may open early this week

An extension of Georgetown's Scenic Drive between West Seventeenth Street and Ranch to Market Road 2243 (the Leander Highway) is expected to open next week, perhaps as early as Tuesday

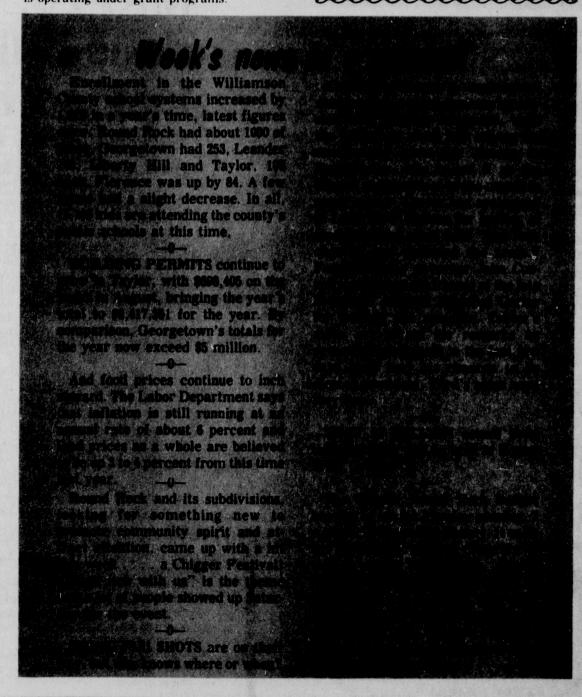

Completion of the paved, two-lane divided thoroughfare will re-open portions of streets around the Westside Intermediate School which have been closed the past month during construction of the extension. It will also alter slightly some of the traffic routes in use before construction began.

"THE MAJOR CHANGES," explained Asst. City Manager W. L. Walden, "include these: beginning at Railroad Street, Seventeenth Street will be two-way instead of one-way along its entire length. Nineteenth Street, which used to circle the Westside School, will now dead end instead. Also. Railroad Street traffic will have to stop at Railroad's intersections with Seventeenth and Eighteenth Streets."

Walden said the completed extension will be an inexpensive boon to the city. "The extension will afford a loop around the west side of town from State Highway 29 to RM 2243, opening up that part of town to through traffic between those two roads," he said. "It used to be that if you wanted to get from Highway 29 to 2243, you had to come clear back up to old U. S. 81 (South Austin Avenue). Now you'll be able to just follow the South San Gabriel River on around to 2243.

"We're basing all of our changes in that area on handling school traffic," Walden added. Places turn to page 14

Who won?

Who "won" the first round Thursday night of the first American presidential campaign debates in sixteen years?

That depends on your criteria for judging victory. Early returns from a Roper poll taken immediately after the Big Show indicate neither James Earl Carter nor Gerald Rudolph Ford walked away with the election in his pocket, as at least 30 percent of the viewers polled declared themselves as undecided as they were before the confrontation.

Both candidates appeared extremely stage-struck as the debate opened. Neither said anything strikingly new in presenting his position on the issues. It was disappointing that some crucial domestic issues, such as busing, were not touched upon.

But the debate did seem a fair, testing, generally well-handled business. It gave the American voter a chance to compare directly, to measure the men, with a flick of a switch. Perhaps the debates will in some measure lessen traditional apathy.

In any case, it's to be hoped that the television debates will not degenerate into a comparison of personalities, appearances, or rhetorical skill, as some social researchers suggest the Kennedy-Nixon debates did. The election of a president is far too important to turn on good looks or personal popularity.

It's also to be hoped that one television presentation will not determine the election results. There are more debates to come, both on and off the tube, which may reveal character traits or stands on the issues which we have not seen.

Watch. Listen. Measure, Compare. Judge. You be the "winner" of these debates.

Blue jeans are 'in' to Red youth

By Eric Bourne

Vienna Blue jeans are "in" in Eastern Europe as a youth status symbol. They are also an indication that Communist leaders have as many problems with the young generation as the much-criticized "bourgeois" West

How they react differs from one regime to another, according to how dogmatic officials are about making youth conform to what the party thinks is good for them.

Some condemn the jeans craze - as they did long hair or any show of preference whatever for Western life-styles - as merely aping "petty bourgeois" ways alien to the moral "purity" of Communist so-

Others are only mildly disapproving and, pragmatically, take the view: "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em!" They make an effort to see youth fantasies for what they are and do something about improving outlets and opportunities for young people.

Only imports will do

This latest fad is not simply for jeans but for imported jeans, from the United States or Western Europe. High import tariffs, apparently, are no deterrent

A letter from a young Hungarian girl published by a Budapest daily newspaper was a vivid, and slightly sad, revelation of adopted 'worldly" attitudes

"In the pop world," she wrote, "one must hold one's position just as much as the older people do. . . . In society anyone who wants to count for something must be prepared to spend up to 1,500 forint [about $37] on fashionable [i.e., foreign] jeans. ... This is mandatory.

Half the price mentioned represents customs duty and local sales tax. Officials claim that Hungarian-made jeans match the imported product - but youths insist on "foreign," which cost five times as much.

A working mother told a Budapest radio magazine program: "My 16-year-old son kept badgering me to buy him jeans, and I had to pay 1,200 forint. Even then I had to have help from 'connections.'

Western styles preferred

Trend by trend, most East European leaders have learned to live with youth's inclination for things Western. Some have tried hard to foster native "pop," but with no great success, even among the Communist Party's own youth.

One recent visitor to the home of a young activist in one East-bloc capital asked to hear some indigenous recordings. "All right, you're our guest so I suppose we must play you some - we prefer these," was the reluctant response. "These" were albums of some of the best-known recent

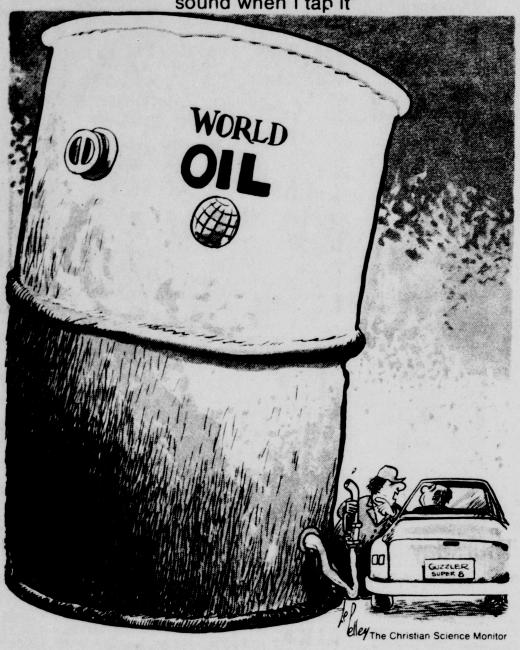

Behind this picture are more serious problems facing young people in Eastern Europe. Growing consumption of alcohol among teen-agers is one. Several countries are making commendable educational efforts to combat alcoholism. Drugs, fortunately, are not a serious problem.

In the work sphere, more and more young people shun jobs in factories or the provinces. A poll of students in Romania's industrial cities found scarcely any content to be "workers," in spite of unremitting pressures from the regime for youngsters to go into direct production to serve the state's industrial goals.

In Czechoslovakia, students' choice of university disciplines is very much subordinated to "social needs" and national "plan"

A Hungarian university dean, however, backed up graduate doctors' reluctance to go to rural practice. He said they should first be given several years' city hospital experience and then be asked only to take provincial posts with satisfactory housing and other amenities.

MIG-25: how does it fly so fast, so high?

Super capability hints new metal, new technology

By Dana Adams Schmidt

Staff correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

The secrets of the Soviet MIG-25 Foxbat - most notably how it can fly so fast and so high while carrying four air-to-air missiles as armament - are being unraveled by American technologists behind the screen of strictest Japanese security

The men from the foreign technology division of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio are systematically studying every inch of the stubby Foxbat. The fighter was flown by Lt. Victor Ivanovich Belenko of the Soviet Air Force from Skharoyka Airbase in Siberia 620 miles to Hakodate civil airfield on Japan's northernmost island Sept. 6.

The Japanese, who have kept the Foxbat in an enclosed hangar, reportedly are planning to take the plane apart and move it in an American C-5 transport to a Japanese air base.

The United States has a plane which can fly as high and as fast (mach 3.2 or more than 2,000 miles an hour) as the MIG-25. It is the SR-71. But it cannot do it while armed with missiles. The U.S. also has a plane that can climb as fast as the MIG-25 - the F-15, but again, without weapons.

Early in 1973, the MIG-25 flew to an altitude of 98,000 feet in 243.4 seconds. Two years later this record was surpassed by the F-15, but the MIG-25 claims (without international endorsement) to have outdone this record subsequently

U.S. technologists have known about the MIG-25 since 1973 when it began to set records, but they do not know much about it. Americans have fought the MIG-21, and the Egyptians have had access to the MIG-23. But the 25 remains a mystery.

How far, they would like to know, have the Russians solved the problems of very high-speed, high-altitude flight, when the pilot may black out in the turns and fuel evaporates at an extraordinary rate?

Fuel has to be injected into the engine at subsonic speed because otherwise it builds up an unmanageable cone of air ahead of itself.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

AUSTIN - What may turn "Democrats for Ford". out to be the shortest Texas presidential campaign ever finally got under way this week.

majority of the minority of Texans who will vote Nov. 2. The Democratic candidate, Jimmy Carter, made his first brief trip into Texas, and John Connally named a group of his friends to make up a campaign committee for Gerald Ford. Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong. the Carter-Mondale chairman, has named regional coordinators for that campaign, and they are at work.

lending all his prestige to the Carter campaign, may have put together the same sort of a coalition which has been when they go to another party's perfected in Minnesota, the state which produces vice presidential candidates like Sen. Walter Mondale. At the state Democratic convention in Fort Worth, Briscoe won the big test on selection of a state chairman by getting the solid votes of rural counties and organized labor.

In Minnesota, they call it the Democratic - Farmer - Labor Party, and it has been in control of state and national offices in that state for 30 years. By such a coalition, Briscoe was able to re-elect Calvin Guest of Bryan to an unprecedented third term as state Democratic chairman, and thus prevailed on the argument that you don't change quarterbacks when you are

It is interesting that John Connally, who made Democratic party loyalty socially acceptable in 1962 and 1964, when he was fighting off strong Republican attacks in his November races for governor, has now undertaken to make party disloyalty socially acceptable again, as it was when Gov. Allen Shivers sold it in 1952 and 1956.

Connally prevailed on a great number of his old friends, most of whom he had appointed to state boards and commissions

Perhaps the only surprise on the list of men named by Connally to help him elect Ford Just 41 days remain to try to was the name of Hunter win the hearts and votes of a McLean of Fort Worth, Connally's appointee as chairman of the State Board of Insurance. McLean had been a solid Democrat, and had been Texas campaign manager for the Johnson-Humphrey campaign of 1964. But he was a close friend of Connally's, and just couldn't say no when the former Democratic governor asked him to be for Ford instead of Carter.

A governor's appointees to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who is state office are generally his closest political friends, and are usually likely to follow him on his political voyages, even planet.

But that is a two-way street, and Gov. Briscoe, with hundreds of appointees in office, is likely to be able to persuade more of that category of voter than Connally, whose appointees have long since left office unless they were reappointed by Briscoe.

Briscoe looks on Carter as a fellow Southern governor who shares Briscoe's pinchpenny views on government. Briscoe welcomed with open arms the "zero-based budget" idea which Carter used in Georgia, and feels that it has helped him prevent new taxes during his four years as governor.

Price Daniel, now a member of the Texas Supreme Court as a tax-paid-for school building. Democrat, has been in the Democratic column since his one drift in 1952 when he supported Dwight Eisenhower for president.

Preston Smith, the other surviving governor, has always supported the Democratic ticket, and would surprise his friends if he did otherwise this

But Shivers, Daniel and Smith are likely to be fairly inactive in this year's campaign, making it a showdown between Briscoe and Connally as to which can deliver the as part of a Democratic ad- Democratic establishment ministration, to become which produced them both.

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to the group of Georgetown citizens who have found an ideal facility for producing their plays. I am speaking of the old Jonah school building - a few miles from your city.

A few days ago, when I was visiting my son Frank Gibson and his wife at Jonah, they took me to see a play in rehearsal at the old building. I was amazed. For many years, I have been in one way or another - involved in community theaters. Never have I seen a more convenient building for a drama center.

Not only does the old building have adequate auditorium, stage, dressing rooms, storerooms, but also a kitchen where first nighters and cast members can celebrate their

Furthermore, there is plenty of parking space on the old campus.

Since my retirement from teaching creative writing and English at Sam Houston State University, my husband and I have been living at Corsicana where we are helping to turn an old warehouse into an art center. I'm afraid we feel a little envious of a ready-made facility. We also think it is good for an organization such as the Georgetown group to put to use

We found Mrs. Karen Stevens directing the first play of the season, and a young man building stage scenery from a blueprint. His wife was helping with the production.

I hope every man, woman and child, who has time, will volunteer to help build a theater that could well rival such theaters as the one at Granbury Opera House. I can imagine people from Austin frequenting a theater such as I am sure Georgetown is capable of sponsoring. I am sure the entire county is involved.

> A Drama Enthusiast Mrs. Jewel Gibson

Shroud of mystery to be peeled away from Foxbat performance

At extreme high speed heat builds up on the skin of an airplane to a point where ordinary metals disintegrate. The U.S. solves this problem by using titanium metal or boron alloys. Do the Russians do likewise, or might they have discovered a new metal?

Does the MIG-25 have a "look-down, shoot-down" capability? Equivalent U.S. aircraft do not. But if the Soviet jet can do so it would make a radical difference to U.S. bomber tactics. The B-52 and B-1 would, for instance become vulnerable.

American fighter aircraft have not been equipped with lookdown radar because of so-called ground distortion, but equipment aboard the new AWACS (Airborne Warning and Control System) aircraft has solved the problem.

Except for a general belief that Soviet radar is inferior, little is known about the MIG-25's ability to see beyond human sight. Nor is much known about its electronic warfare equipment - devices that could fool enemy radar with noise or effects that would show on enemy radar screens as half a dozen

Beyond the engineering questions, American experts are pondering the answers to more abstract problems. What, for instance, might be the effect of this incident on other Russian pilots? Will the Soviet Air Force be afraid to let them fly alone in future? Might a pilot who broke formation - as Lieutenant Belenko did - be shot down?

In the Belenko case, he was the last of a formation of three Foxbats when he broke formation and dived to an altitude of 150 feet at wheih his colleagues could not find him. Again, when he approached the Japanese coast the Russian dropped to low altitude, thereby outwitting Japanese interceptors.

The ease with which the Soviet pilot entered Japanese airspace - and the probability that it would be no more difficult to break into American airspace - may trigger efforts to improve both Japanese and American air defenses.

Rare Royal Doulton figurines presented to Southwestern

Mrs. Alma Thomas of Austin, philanthropist, patroness of the arts, and longtime trustee of Southwestern University, has presented to the university her collection of Royal Doulton figurines - eight famous Great Ladies of English History.

These invaluable art objects, created especially for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, were obtained by Mrs. Thomas when she was present for the historic event in 1952.

The presentation ceremony for the figurines was held on Tuesday, September 21, at 10 a.m. in the Gallery of the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center, a three-story building erected in 1956 and the gift of Mrs. Thomas.

Presiding during the ceremony was Dr. Durwood Fleming, university president, who said: "Southwestern University is very fortunate to have been chosen as 'the permanent residence for these Great Ladies.' This is a rare gift from one of our dearest friends and enriches our art treasures.'

Dr. Fleming spoke of Mrs. Thomas as an outstanding personality, a great force in the life of the university, a source of inspiration with her power of perception and fierce dedication to her philosophy that "life is good if you put everything into it," a practitioner of the philosophy of giving, a patroness of the arts, an educator and world traveler.

Dr. Theodore D. Lucas, dean of the School of Fine Arts, paid tribute to Mrs. Thomas on behalf of students and faculty and expressed appreciation to her for this rare and precious collection of figurines, saying 'This gift will long enhance the Fine Arts Center and will be housed in the Gallery with other examples of Mrs. Thomas' generosity. Claude Kennard, art historian in the School of Fine Arts and director of the Gallery in the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center, gave a brief history of the Royal Doulton Company founded in 1815 and authorized in 1901 by King Edward VII to use the term "royal" in designating its manufactures. Paying tribute to Mrs.

Thomas for her thoughtfulness and magnanimity in presenting the collection, Kennard concluded his remarks with a "jingle" containing descriptive stanzas on each of the eight great ladies with a final stanza Designers of the display area housing the figurines are Jessen Associates, Inc., Austin, along with longtime Austin friends of Mrs. Thomas, H. E. Jessen, architect, and A. J. Williams, architect and craftsmen.

MATILDA (1080-1118), Queen of Henry I, better known as "Good Queen Maud." The verdict of her subjects was: "The goodness she did to England cannot all be written here, nor by any man understood." Welleducated for her time, she won the friendship and support of learned men, and wielded a discreet but considerable influence over her husband, the famous Lion of Justice.

ELEANOR OF PROVENCE (1222-1291), Queen of Henry III, steeped in the tradition of courtly literature and with great beauty, her marriage to Henry III should have been the prelude to a brilliant reign. Unfortunately, she brought with her a host of needy relatives. The taxes necessary to support the Queen's large retinue brought her great unpopularity, while the incompetent king was reputed to be entirely under her control. In her declining years, her charity did much to wipe out her former unpopularity. FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE (1820-1910)-

MRS. ALMA THOMAS with the Royal Doulton figurines.

Although Florence Nightingale was born with rank and wealth, her "crest" is most logically the Order of Merit, earned by her own efforts. In her, "charm was united with elegance, and a gracious personality was illuminated by a vigorous intellect." Her history needs hardly to be told. At St. Thomas' Hospital, the Nightingale Home for training nurses, which she founded, is today the living monument to her greatness.

THE LADY ANNE NEVILL (1456-1485), Queen of Richard III, the short life of beautiful Anne of Warwick, last of the Plantagenet queens of England, was one of the tragedies of the Wars of the Roses. She was first married to Edward, Prince of Wales, son of Henry

VI. When Edward IV was killed in battle, Richard usurped the throne and forced Anne to marry him, thus making her play the role of Queen, and killed his nephews in the Tower. Later her infamous husband paid for his crimes at the Battle of Bosworth. HENRIETTA MARIA (1609-1666), Queen of Charles I — At 16 years of age, youngest daughter of Henry IV of France, Henrietta Maria was married to that "fair and fatal," artistic and obstinate king, Charles I. Unskilled in statecraft, her great contribution to English history is the memory that, always Fench, her taste in dress was never at fault. In her honor, Lord Baltimore named his new colony "Maryland." She lived to see her son enjoy his rights as Charles II.

PHILIPPA OF HAINAULT (1314-1369), Queen of Edward III - Chivalry had reached its full maturity when Philippa was Queen of England. Under her patronage, the poetry of and literature of the nation. Her husband was Edward III and her eldest son was the Black Prince, whose armies triumphed repeatedly but whose captives were invariably treated with the courtesy befitting their rank and valor. Her strong influence over Edward III is clearly reflected by the rapid deterioration in his character after Philippa was carried to her grave in Westminster. MARGARET OF ANJOU (1430-1482), Queen of Henry VI - Last and most luckless of the queens from Provence. Margaret of Anjoy went to England as the pledge of peace from France to become the bride of Henry VI. This saintly king, founder of Eton College, was no military leader. To maintain her son's claim to the succession, Margaret devoted her beauty, high spirits and reckless bravery to a losing cause . . . her armies were destroyed, Henry VI was murdered at his prayers, and Margaret was imprisoned in the Tower. Today Queen's College, Cambridge, honors her as founder and constitutes her only memorial in England. MRS. FITZHERBERT (1756-1837) - A wealthy widow. Maria Fitzherbert was descended from an ancient Shropshire family, the Smythes of Acton Burnell. She lived at Richmond and became the reigning toast. The Prince of Wales, the future George IV. fell desperately in love with her; but, since she was a devout Catholic, he could not marry her, for the Act of Settlement forbade any member of the Royal Family marrying a Catholic. When he threatened suicide, she relented, and they were canonically married in the presence of her uncle and brother. She never used her position for personal ends. Whatever good influence appeared in the Prince's life came from her. Subsequently he abandoned her for an official queen. Her dignity and selfefacement endeared Maria Fitzherbert to the Royal Family, and William IV gave her leave to wear widow's weeds for George IV who died with her miniature around his neck.

Six win in TG&Y sale drawing

Georgetown's TG&Y Family iron Home Center at 908 N. Austin Ave. recently rewarded six Williamson County residents with appliances after their names were drawn in a promocelebrating TG&Y's national 40th Anniversary Sale.

Prize winners included Wanda Follet and Darla Smith, both of Leander, and Lorene Griffith of Florence, all of whom won General Electric Co. styling dryers; Nancy Lamb and Santos Gonzales of Round Rock. of Georgetown, who won a GE TG&Y

They were among 3,300 persons from the Williamson County area who registered for the drawing at T G & Y's Georgetown store during the Anniversary Sale the first week of June. TG&Y's 1,000 U. S. stores sent entries to the company's Chicago headquarters, which announced the award of 800 General Electric products.

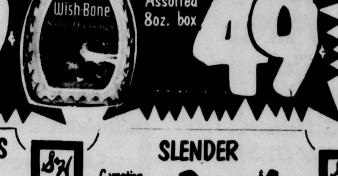

"I think it's amazing that out of all those names drawn in Chicago, six were from around who both won GE shave cream here," said Jim Bayless, dispensers; and Liz Alexander manager of the Georgetown

TV Quotes'

Dick Van Dyke (star of NBC-TV's new series, "Van Dyke and Company"): "I was in high school when I realized I was funny. Stan Laurel had the most effect on my work.

Van Dyke: "Who makes me laugh? Flip Wilson, Peter Sellers, Sid Caesar, Jonathan Winters, Richard Pryor and Tim Conway.

Van Dyke: "The three funniest female clowns, not comediennes, I think are Carol Burnett, Nancy Wilson and Jo Anne Worley.

Robert Conrad (star of NBC-TV's new series, "Baa Baa Black Sheep"): "This is my fifth TV series. I fell in love with the story and that's why I'm doing it. I just finished a two-year period where all I did was ski."

Conrad: "When I came to California I had been making about $75 a week. I was told about a stunt job, falling off a horse, for $80 a day. so you can imagine how fast I took it.'

Jerry West (Los Angeles Lakers coach): "It's easier being a player than a coach. When the team loses the coach is blamed, when it wins the players get the credit.

Psychologist Dr. Joyce Brothers: "Studies show that the happiest marriages are among those partners who were both virgins before marriage and remained faithful.

Eva Gabor: "I know it sounds old-fashioned, but I've never 'lived' with a man. . . I've always married them."

Joey Bishop: "It's my wife who is responsible for us being married 35 years!

Therd who?

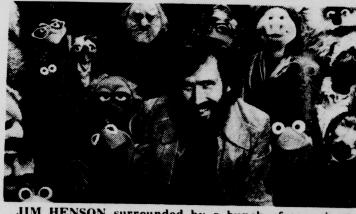

Tyrone Power, Orson Welles. A young man seeking adventure is almost destroyed.

Madcap merriment: The Muppet Show

JIM HENSON surrounded by a bunch of mugging Muppets.

Only in America could one rise from the obscurity of a Mississippi swamp to become the host of a musical variety show. The feat is particularly difficult if you happen to be a frog, and a dummy as well. That's no reflection on the poor lad's intelligence. It's just, you see, that Kermit happens to be a Muppet, the creation of a rangy, bearded fellow named Jim Henson.

Henson, his protege Kermit and a glorious array of singing, dancing and romancing Muppets have joined to create a delightful family program, entitled The Muppet Show. Designed to fulfill the intent of the FCC Prime Time Access Ruling and the Family Viewing concept as well, The Muppet Show is a perfect blend of musical comedy of the old vaudeville variety and whimsical imagination of the Peter Pan variety. The show has, so far, been syndicated nationwide to over 60 stations and is set to premiere in late September:

Television has had a variety of series headed by puppets and marionettes before. It all began in 1947, when Howdy Doody poked his little wooden head in front of the cameras. Soon there was Lamb Chop and Charlie Horse, Kukla and Ollie, Rootie Kazootie and Polka Dotty. But none of the stars were ever relieved of the burden of carrying their human counterparts on-screen. So viewers also saw Buffalo Bob, Shari Lewis, Fran Allison and the like. Not on The Muppet

As host of the show, Kermit is his own man. I mean frog. no. Muppet. Whatever. Jim Henson, who aside from creating Kermit some 19 years ago and innumerable Muppets since, is literally the man behind the Muppet. Kermit's whiny voice is a variation of Henson's and when he squinches up his face, it's Henson who is doing the squinching. But Henson has no desire to compete with his little friends on air. It's their show all the way

The format for the series is an update of the old movie musicals which involved putting on a show within the show. All the onstage and backstage performances are here in the grand tradition of "42nd Street," "Babes on Broad-way" and other such films which convinced impressionable minds that anything was possible as long as you had a song in your heart, and maybe knew how to tapdance as well.

Some of the characters viewers will meet are: Kermit, of course, host of the show and theatre manager: Fozzie Bear, the stand-up comic; Scooter, an over zealous gofer who is kept around because his uncle owns the theatre; Hilda the wardrobe lady: Wayne and Wanda, a Muppet version Nelson Eddy-Jeanette McDonald singing duo: Piggy Lee, a voluble singer who also happens to be crazy about Kermit (little backstage romance here) and many, many more.

A concession is being made to humankind in that one real live personality will guest each week. The guests that have so far been set include Juliet Prowse. Connie Stevens, Joel Grey, Ruth Buzzi, Rita Moreno. Jim Nabors, Charles Aznavour and other biggies who have proven themselves to be no slouches in the entertainment field.

The best thing that can be said for The Muppet Show was said by none other than a rival. One of the network program heads was quoted as saying that it "was the one show we don't have that I'm afraid of." Nuff said.

John Wayne plus Katharine Hepburn equals mutal admiration society

HE: "If Spence and Bogie could see me now, wouldn't they be jealous? She not only lights up the set, she lights up the day

SHE: "He's gentle, he's quick, he never misses a trick. He's a giant redwood, I'm a pigmy, and I'm supremely happy. He's a monster and I love him."

The HE is John Wayne and the SHE Katharine Hepburn, paired for the first time in Hal Wallis' production for Universal of "Rooster Cogburn," opening October 1 at the Liberty Theater in Liberty Hill

Shot almost entirely on location in the Cascade Mountains and high deserts of Oregon, with raft sequences on the Rogue and Deschutes Rivers, the story was suggested by the character "Rooster Cogburn" from the novel "True Grit" by Charles Portis, and is another page in the life of the eye-patched marshal a role that won John Wayne an Academy Award.

The only three-time Academy Award winning actress in film history, Ms. Hepburn joins Wayne as the prudish and prim Eula Goodnight, Bible-thumping daughter of a minister.

As the story comes to life. something else surfaces - an affinity, tinged with reverence, romance and respect - between two of the greatest figures in the entertainment world today: Wayne and Hepburn, living legends in their own time.

"I was born to be his leading lady," chortles the volatile Kate. "Working with John is one of the greatest thrills of my life. He anticipates every move, every word, every action. And you know what? He's always right."

Hepburn paused for an instant at this point, then went on. "If I didn't love him, that would probably give me a complex.

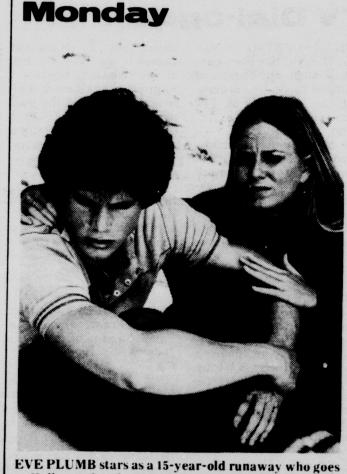

True to his life-long role of the somewhat laconic man of action, the Duke was equally emphatic.

Two of the most popular stars in screen history. JOHN WAYNE and KATHARINE HEPBURN are teamed for the first time in Universal's "Rooster Cogburn." a Hal B. Wallis production suggested by character in the novel "True Grit" by Charles

TV Star Scene

Jack Ford, son of President Ford, has been engaged as a consultant for an episode of an ABC After School Special entitled "P.J. and the President's Son." which will air Wednesday, Nov. 10 (4:30-5:30). The story is an update of "The Prince and the Pauper," with two 15year-old boys living in Washington D.C. One. obviously, is the son of the President. Soon a switch is made and the fun begins. Among Jack Ford's helpful hints to the producers was describing what it's like to have a national monument for "home" and how to cope with the constant gaze of Secret Service agents.

Arlo Guthrie of "Alice's Restaurant" fame has been cast for a role in an upcoming Rich Man, Poor Man, Book II. He'll play himself in the episode. . . Marion Ross and Erin Moran not only have something in common as mother and daughter on ABC's Happy Days, they also share a strong passion off the set. Horses! Both spend their free time grooming and training their show horses. Marion calls her's "Aquarius," while "Apple Cider" is Erin's steed.

Game show entrepreneur Chuck Barris -- The Dating Game, The Newleywed Game. The New Treasure Hunt -- says he never anticipated the fan mail aspect that comes from being an on-camera personality. "But it's basically great," he concedes. "even the thousands of letters asking about Siv Aberg." Siv Aberg is the former Miss Sweden who carries the gong award on Chuck's program. The Gong Show. STILL WORKING -- Now that Harry-O has been cancelled, what will become of Anthony Zerbe, who is probably the best actor on TV? Marilyn Dieter, San Antonio, Tex.

I agree with you about Zerbe's skill as an actor, but I wouldn't worry too much about his future. He's making the guest star rounds and has been signed for a role in ABC's "How the West Was Won," a series of three two-hour movies.

ROOTIE'S GANG -- I know this sounds like a nutty question, but my friends and I are going crazy trying to think of the other puppets' names on Rootie Kazootie, an old TV show from the '50s. Can you help? Tony Cerra, Brooklyn, N.Y

FOOTBALL CONTEST

PICK THE WINNERS AND WIN A PRIZE

Here's How You Play:

HERE WE GO AGAIN! It's football time -- and time for the annual County SUN Football Contest. If you're a Saturday morning armchair quarterback, you can enter this fun Contest and check up on yourself! Might even win a little money at it or a free theater

Here's a game to test your skill -- it's a game that the whole family can enjoy. Spread this page out on the kitchen table. Let everybody play. There'll be a new contest each week until about the middle of November. So ready, get set, GO!

- Win $10, $5 or $3 for first, second or third respectively
- Next five winners may pick up a free ticket to the Palace Theater!
- Pick up all prizes and theater tickets at The SUN.
- The only notification of the winners will be in the following week's
- See this week's football games on this page.
- In each game, check the team you think will win. (You do NOT need to indicate score).
- Unless all games are marked, your entry will be automatically disqualified.
- Then to eliminate as nearly as possible any ties in this fun-test, every entry must have the score marked on "The Tie Breaker" game listed at right.
- Only one entry per person will be qualified, but as many from a family may enter as wish to do so -except employees and families of the Williamson County SUN.
- You may enter the fun-test on this page. Or you may copy the games on another sheet of paper, in dicating your pick in each game

- All entries must be brought to The SUN by 5:00 p.m. Friday or mailed with a postmark not later than 7:00 p.m. Friday of each week. The SUN will grade all entries, and The SUN's decision will be Final and incontestable.
- Have FUN! And patronize the businesses who make this fun-test possible.

time tax time tax time tax

Taxes are terrible, most taxpayers decide. But for the county tax collector's office, hey're worse.

The eight employees in Williamson County Tax Collector William P. Buck's office not only have to pay county taxes, they have to mail out all those statements.

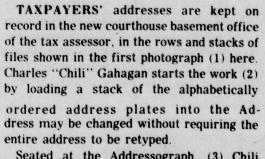

And there's more to mailing the over-40,000 payment requests than the average taxpayer has ever seen.

Maybe the only advantage in that, from a tax employee's view, is the fact that they don't have to lick all those stamps and envelopes

But that's a long way from where the work really begins . . .

text & photos by nel persky

Seated at the Addressograph, (3) Chili feeds information into the machine, which reproduces each name and address on the roll.

Both sides (4) of the tax roll are used to list the names, and the tax roll is still — as later pictures reveal — inches thick.

Chili makes three copies of each page: one to be bound for the courthouse office and one for the county's Taylor annex, as well as a copy which is mailed to the state comptroller.

AFTER THE TAX roll forms have over 40,000 taxpayers' names and mailing addresses filled in, it's Dorothy Kubacek's turn (5).

The mini-computer — a Burroughs tax machine — she uses to figure tax amounts from information stored in the machine was also moved to the new basement office earlier this year.

"This is making receipts and figuring taxes all at the same time — it figures the discounts," she explained when this photograph was snapped late in June, already her part of the tax-collection procedure was well underway.

"All you have to do is just tell it what to do," laughed Buck. "That's the best thing we have gotten to help with taxes since I don't know when."

For each taxpayer, Dorothy types in that persons' property value. The computer figures the rest, printing it on the tax roll as well as on the taxpayer's statement.

Each statement shows the amount of tax owed, plus a one-, two-, and three-percent early payment discount. All are figured by the computer from rendition information Dorothy types in.

Bills paid by the end of October can deduct three percent and those paid in November should be minus two percent of the total, while December payments receive a one percent discount.

All taxes are due in January, and delinquent notices will be mailed early in February to tardy taxpayers.

WHILE THREE copies of the tax roll (6), Mary Lois Ray points out, are overwhelming, just one bound copy of the county's tax roll—one-third the height of the stack pictured—can be quite overwhelming.

It records $120,296,116 in property valuation throughout Williamson County.

The total was reported to and approved by county commissioners only this September, three months after work began on the tax roll on which the figures were recorded and total-

Meanwhile the triplicate tax roll had to be separated into three stacks (7) to be individually bound. That's not the only place

Tax Assessor Buck got into the act — just only the picture he walked into.

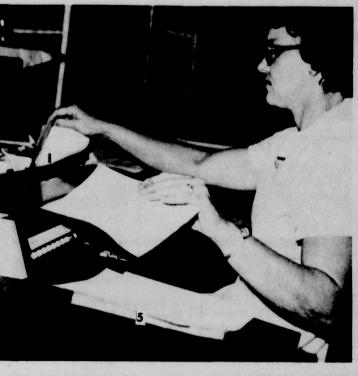

STACKS AND STACKS of statements filled the tax office waiting for Mary Lois (8) and other tax office personnel to stuff 40,000 envelopes ready for mailing.

In a final step, Chili, who began the process, completes it.

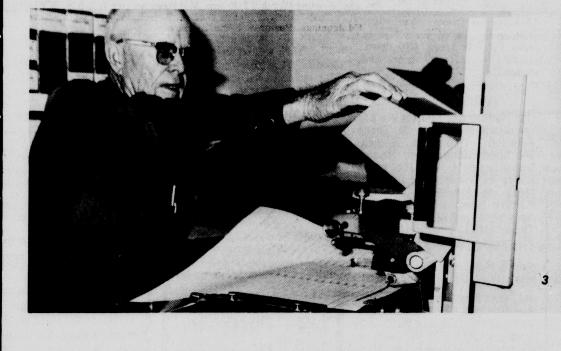

Stacks of the envelopes are fed through a postage meter (9 and 10) which not only stamps but seals each tax statement.

Now it's the postman's job to get your statement to your mailbox.

Expect it early this week, because Buck hopes to begin mailing the statements Monday.

Liberty Hill NEWS BY HOWARD N. WILSON

Our community is a very busy place that is now something we can all take for granted. There is always many varied activities in and around the area which will surely include something for everyone.

The next Liberty Hill Market Day is scheduled for Saturday, October 2, and then, just two weeks later on Saturday, October 16, our Liberty Hill Arts and Crafts Fair will be the big attraction. This will be just five days after the beginning of our International Sculpture Symposium. In addition to the 18 sculptors from various parts of the world working on their sculptures, there will be many other artisans displaying their wares. Anyone who wants to get a booth for your handicrafts should make reservations just as soon as you possibly can - a large crowd is expected.

For those of you who get the 'Sunday Sun' in the Saturday mind you the Liberty Hill VFW

A large crowd of ex-students and friends attended the The Liberty Hill Ex-Students' homecoming football game Association held its annual between the Exes and the Rock meeting on September 11, with House Rockets Saturday evening. This game is to be an annual event in connection with the homecoming.

Ex-cheerleaders are being sought to lead the cheers at next year's game. Anyone who is willing to help in locating former cheerleaders should contact Linda Spivey or Paula (Lane) Spivey. If everyone will help we could have at least a half dozen ex-cheerleaders next fall for the game!

The 4-H Club has as their motto, "Learn by doing," and we know that "Practice makes perfect!" Experience is still the best teacher!

North, to Alaska

Bread at $1.39 a loaf, $75 a night for a hotel room and up to $1.16 an Imperial gallon* for gas, potholes which made driving 40 miles an hour scandalous and mud that "stuck so hard it took us about 45 minutes to pry it off each wheel" - yet they'd drive back again and

What place could have such charm? For W. K. and Rosamond McClain, Alaska offered rewards to offset every hardship met during their 13.000-mile, three-month trip.

"And here, with all its majesty, was this soaring beautiful white monster."

Leaving Georgetown June 15, the local attorney and his wife drove their Travco motor home to join a Travco-sponsored caravan heading for a tour of the northernmost parts of the United States and the North American

Traveling with Rosamond's sister, Francis Schmidt of Plainfield, Illinois, the couple had time to attend the National Square Dance Association meeting in Anaheim, California, and visit some former Leander residents living nearby — the Steward Walkers — before joining 75 other Travco owners in Dawson Creek. British Columbia, to head for the Artic Circle.

The company-sponsored caravan, organized only for the travel home owners, included a mechanic, doctor, registered nurse - and someone to drive ahead to announce to gasoline stations. "There are 76 travel homes coming up the road, all needing gas. Who'll give the best discount?'

"WE JOINED this caravan and went on up the Al-Can in stages of 250 miles a day, approximately," explained W. K. From its start at Dawson Creek, the Al-Can is 1,422 miles long. "This is a dirt and gravel road, incidentally: 1,422 miles of it.

Heading through Tok, the travelers made a stop at Whitehorse in the Yukon for historyfilled two-day side excursion into gold rush

'We left our motor homes at Whitehorse and flew (south) to Juneau, spent a day in Juneau and left about 12:30 at night. The sun was just going down — and that's midnight.

Separated from Georgetown by more than miles, the adventurers made a stop in the Alaskan capital city of Juneau - "not the biggest city of Alaska because Anchorage is." They also got a look at the "beautiful, modern city" of Anchorage, where "more people live than in the rest of Alaska com-

They begged, and every dog that didn't get selected was just like a child; they felt deprived that they didn't get to start off."

From Juneau they took a boat up the Inland Passage famed from gold rush days, to Skagway.

"This was the point, really, where most of the old people in gold rush days went to get into Alaska and the Yukon," W. K. noted of the Inland Passage.

Now, Skagway is getting into the old gold rush country; this is the country that has so much history. This was really where we

HOME and glad to be back. W and Rosamond McClain proudly display the bumper sticker commemorating their 13.000-mile trek to the end of the Al-Can Highway and the northernmost point of the North American continent. But you won't catch W. K. wearing that Vandyke around Georgetown he shaved it off shortly after their return home

CARAVANING was easier after W. K. got his Canadian citizens band license, for the McClains used the communication system nearly as much as they used the recreational vehicle which was their home for the three months their trip lasted. The carved totem pole symbolizes the Eskimo world view, with an eagle perched atop the pole and a frog at bottom - either way it's turned. Rosamond found the vehicle's kitchen, including this little refrigerator, cozy with everything a fingertip away.

started seeing the country of the gold rush. All the culture and the background of this country was so different from anything we had ever seen.

'We took a train, then, from Skagway back to Whitehorse," W. K. continued a thumbnail travelogue of the three-month drive as Rosamond quickly inserted the fact that the Whitehorse and Yukon Railroad is still a narrow-gauge railway. "This train ride took about five hours. The railroad was built here in order to get over the Whitehorse Pass."

NOT ONLY THE WHITEHORSE Pass, but other mountains, glaciers and their ice-fed rivers captured the enthusiasm of the Texan caravanists.

Especially memorable was Mt. McKinley and the beautiful national park surrounding the oft-hidden peak

'You can only see it from miles away," said Rosamond, launching into a tale of how seldom the largest mountain on the American continent can be seen. "We were lucky," she begins a tale of how, about 60 miles away from the more-than 20,000-foot giant, they stopped their motor home at a posted lookout.

And here, with all its majesty, was this soaring beautiful white monster.

'Kelly said, 'Wait till we get a little bit closer,' to take a picture. And we never saw it again.

But among sights to be seen "a little bit - actually within Mt. McKinley National Park - were a special assortment of wild game: black bear, moose, eagle, caribou and, off in the distance, mountain

"They named it Circle because they thought it was on the Arctic Circle; but they missed it by 60 miles."

Rosamond reported, "You are only allowed to drive in about 30 miles. They are protecting it; nobody can just drive back into the park.

While backpackers, for instance, can get special permission to hike farther into the wilderness, the park service also provides free bus tours for the less adventurous. It was during one of these the McClains saw so much

'And we saw a marvelous demonstration of dogsled driving in an area before you get into the park," Rosamond recalled. They had all those enormous dogs of mixed breeds all chained to their individual

Although so many envision the standard Alaskan "huskie" as a vicious semi-wild animal, "these had been especially bred to be kind and affectionate. They just loved to be

She proves it with a picture of herself and others reaching to fondle a heavily furred, tail-wagging sled dog

EXCITED HERSELF, she recalls the dogs' excitement when the handler stepped forward to choose which dogs would pull the sled for the demonstration.

"They begged and every one wanted to go. Every dog that didn't get selected was just like a child; they just felt deprived that they didn't get to start off. There were four times as many dogs as they needed.

"Then he told them to get back, and he said, 'Mush!' and they went so fast!" When they start off, they start off with enthusiasm," her husband agreed.

FROM MT. McKINLEY the tour could go only slightly north.

We drove up to Fairbanks and this was the end of the trail. That's as far north, with the exception of Circle, as you can go with your motor home," said W. K.

"One hundred miles further — if you can stand the road," adds Rosamond, "is Circle. They named it Circle because they thought it was on the Arctic Circle: but they missed it by 60 miles.

A certificate proves that the McClains didn't miss the Arctic Circle at all. They flew from Fairbanks to Point Barrow, which lies within the frigid circle on the Bering Sea.

"It was desperately cold," reported the attorney's wife, showing photographs of the couple wearing borrowed parkas and inspecting racks of game - goose, salmon, reindeer - drying in preparation for the winter.

"They live a very primitive life," she noted, displaying one picture taken near where she saw an animal being skinned with a flat-bladed Eskimo hand ax.

As the spring thaw was just taking effect, they saw provisions for another year of winter being boated in.

"It was desperately cold."

Farther south, in Valdez, the traveling companions noted "the terminal point of the Alaskan pipeline from the North Slope. That's an 800-mile pipeline that is going to transport the oil from the North Slope. This is in the freshwater port of Valdez. It's really a thriving town of about 10,000 people, one of the old gold rush towns, too.

W. K. also noted that Valdez, on the Kenai Peninsula "is the most marvelous fishing area in the world." Pictures attest to the fact, as he is shown hefting a day's catch the full three-salmon limit, each fish weighing an estimated 12 or 14 pounds - and the couple are photographed with friends partying on fresh-caught salmon prepared, Rosamond told, in a variety of about four or five

On the homeward trip, the caravan stopped in Dawson City.

"Dawson City is really in the Yukon," noted W. K. "It has preserved all of the frontier aroma and spirit. The houses are all of the 1800-1905 vintage

"STREETS ARE STILL DIRT and gravel and they had sidewalks made of planks,

There was a place called 'Diamond-Tooth Gurtie's Saloon." Diamond-Tooth Gurtie's was a very famous place for gambling in the old days and by a special act of the Yukon they have legalized gambling at Dawson City. But it can only be done at Diamond-Tooth Gurtie's place. You go into this place and here are all of the gambling devices. And a sawdust floor. And can-can girls. It has all of the spirit of the early 1900's.

"We drove out and we saw these different streams where the gold had been discovered - and they have absolutely torn up those valleys," said the Georgetown attorney of a less cheerful aspect of their vacation. "They have dug those valleys up and washed them. We have left them in pretty terrible condition. They are no longer the beautiful places they were.'

"Diamond-Tooth Gurtie's Saloon was a very famous place for gambling in the old days. It has all of the spirit of the early 1900's."

Rosamond became a weed-watcher during the trip, enchanted with a northern wildflower named "fireweed."

"One of the most interesting parts to me was the beautiful vegetation," she said. "Of course the trees were nine-tenths conifers. But to my great surprise they had great forests of birch trees. And in front of them would be this brilliant red flower

"I thought it was called fireweed because of the color, but they told me when there's a fire the first thing to grow back up is the fireweed.

Bluebonnets are not in it when you talk about covering the land," she said, remembering the reddish-purple landscapes of the north.

"Indian paintbrush was the only one I recognized as being a Texas wildflower, too. They did have lupines, which are similar. Bluebonnets are of the lupine family.'

"We had to come right back down the same Al-Can, down from Dawson City to Dawson Creek. We came through Jasper National Park and Banff and Lake Louise," travelogued W. K.

"THEY HAVE FABULOUS lakes way up in the mountains and in the springtime the debris from the snow changes the lake color into just as blue a turquoise as you can imagine," said Rosarnond. "Lake Louise is considered by many people the most beautiful lake in the world, and I wouldn't be one to

'This is more like Switzerland,' mused W. K., inspecting a series of photos taken in the mountainous areas.

"The Laird River, which we crossed several times, had a little notice that said 'camping area and hot pool,' "Rosamond described one nearly unique highlight of their adventurous three months. "There was a boardwalk a quarter of a mile across marshy land to a place where there was a beautiful little pool. It was a very cold, rainy, messy day - about 45 degrees outside. But we shivered and changed and went rushing down into the warm water.

"All of a sudden we stopped: it was 95 degrees and I thought I was being boiled." Like others before them — although she noted only a few others were in the pool because they were there early one morning the couple quickly adjusted to the water temperature.

'It was the most marvelous sensation," said Rosamond, adding that the natural pool included sulphur and other minerals.

"And then the fun was watching others come in, because they all went through the same routine.

Winter scenes depicted on postcards of the area show ice and snow surrounding the pool of steaming hot water.

"Although the roads were rough, I would do it again," they agree, but note they were away from their home for a very long time. "Five more days and it would have been three months," said the couple who arrived back in Georgetown only on the tenth of September.

'We were so happy to get home. We'd seen glaciers, mountains, waterfalls, but the water tower when we got home was the most beautiful sight."

A Jarrell school teacher as well as member and past president of the Williamson County Teachers' Association, Zona Gail Thompson is unique because she is a woman: she is the community action agency's first female chairman of the board.

Having represented the county-wide teachers' organization since she was seated as a board member in November four years ago, Zona Gail admits, "I think each board member has a pet program.

"The one that helps the aged is my favorite," said the lady who has devoted her career to instructing children.

For a very nominal fee they will serve a hot meal to shutins. Most of the food and services for this are strictly donated. There will be money coming through for that laterbut at the moment it's only donated food and time.

'All the people need to do is let them know that they need a hot meal. It's a very mutritious meal delivered to their door for a very small sum.

Added for the first time to the United Way budget, the Meals on Wheels program provides a hot, balanced lunch for between 16 and 22 persons who are living alone or unable to prepare complete meals for themselves.

The program, operating out of the Neighborhood Center, reassurance program and provides transportation to help the elderly shop and go to the store and doctor's office.

Election precinct field notes will be considered for approval and polling locations designated as a result of August 12 authorization as well as subsequently adopted changes which added three election precincts to the county's voter divisions

LIABILITY INSURANCE is one topic listed for discussion by County Sheriff August Bosshard: the other involves expenses for a trip made to Colorado in order to pick up Oscar

Ray Burleson, who was indicted May 7 in Williamson County's 26th District Court for aggravated robbery. Bosshard had requested that the county purchase liability insurance in 1977 when commissioners first discussed new budget items at their July 16 study session.

"It's a question as to whether we can expend county funds; we'll do what we can," Foust told Bosshard then. Discussion of the Sutton County land, which benefits county schools, is scheduled for the Monday session, in addition to several road and subdivision considerations.

"We decided Taylor could have a livestock show every week and we still would have a show in Georgetown," Lidell reported Fair and Show Association members' response during the Thursday session.

The countywide Association had already obtained a $100,000 commitment from county commissioners to support construction of a new building located in the county seat, Georgetown

Although Association directors stressed the fact that the central Georgetown site was selected by all member representatives from the county, a resolution proposing that the new livestock building be constructed in Taylor was subsequently passed by members of that city's commerce chamber. Association members seeking to clarify county commissioners' intentions in allocating the $100,000 recently asked the county fathers if the money could be split, $50,000 for Taylor and the same for the Georgetown construction.

Pointing out that the allocation was made because they had been assured a single livestock show would result, and that "the old east-west controversy" in Williamson County was forgotten, commissioners refused.

Fielder's mother testified that she told jail authorities her son was sick and tried to get a doctor's note to prove it. Fellow inmates testified that Fielder hallucinated during his confinement. They said that both they and Fielder asked without success for medical attention for Fielder.

Bosshard Walker and Champion testified that they knew of Fielder's claims of illness, but attributed his behavior to delirium tremens. the "DT's" which affect heavy drinkers

Plaintiffs' attorney Waggoner Carr argued that the defendants violated Fielder's constitutional rights by not providing him medical

Small told jurors they must decide whether deprivation of medical care contributed to Fielder's death. He contended that Fielder probably would have died at that time no matter where he was, aruguing that the rupture of Fielder's ulcerated blood vessel was due to acute alcoholism and had nothing to do

Jurors assessed $40,000 in actual damages and $20,000 in punitive damages against Bosshard: $20,000 in actual damages and no punitive damages against Walker; $10,000 in actual damages and $9,000 in punitive damages against Champion; and no damages against Chandler.

They asked that $30,000 of the damage payments be set aside for the education of Fielder's children.

G&M also charged with the libel the corporations which own and publish the American-Statesman: Newspapers, Inc., Texas Newspapers, Inc., and Cox Enterprises. FOUST SAID the catering company agreed to drop its suit against him and to pay his legal costs after he made clear that he had not tagged the company a "promoter" of the Nelson event and had relied on the findings of County Attorney Norman Manning in filing the suit.

"They dropped it because they had no grounds for suit against me," said Foust. "I said earlier that when the true facts came up, they would show there were no grounds. Norman selected who the complaints would be filed against. I just signed the order.

"THESE PEOPLE clearly were not promoters," he added. "It was clear in public hearings before the festival that Willie Nelson and Crackerjack were the only promoters."

But Foust said the suit had not changed his attitude toward outdoor music festivals. "They (concert promoters) are going to meet opposition in these festivals from now on," he said. "I don't condone those type operations; I saw with my own eyes what they do. I don't deny anyone's right to have them, but they ought to have them where they can have the proper conveniences, facilities and security for the crowds. I think their rights end where other people's begin.'

Concerning the apparent termination of the suit, Foust said, "I'm real proud it has been handled in this manner. I hope the final disposition will be like I think.'

> Life is Like A SUMMER DAY

The hot blazing sun rays beat down on fresh plowed ground, while a Robin winged her way across the field, looking for a worm to feed her newborn; nestled in the fork

A young boy walked along a dusty road; his fishing pole swinging gently; as he skipped along in the hot sand, day dreaming about the big fish he hoped to catch in the cool stream, running slowly across hills and meadows that were green with summertime beauty.

A days washing hung on the line blowing dry from the hot summer breeze, which hung next to the farm house over looking the cattle, grazing, in fields of fresh clover.

The farmer's wife pulled grass from her flower garden that was in full bloom, and the squirrel over head munched on fresh mulberry's just waiting for the new crop of nuts to develop so he could store them for a cold winter.

The raincrow gave her mournful call, hoping for a shower that would cool the glen on the hill behind the barn. A wood pecker perched on the side of a dead pecan tree making sounds that could be heard in the distance.

Shadows grew smaller as the sun began to fall slowly behind the horizon. An Owl called to it's mate to signal the dawn of night on this summer day.

County examines Bosshard verdict

No decisions were formulated and no action taken when county commissioners met with County Attorney Norman Manning and his assistant Bill Stubblefield, as well as Austin attorney Ed Small and County Sheriff August Bosshard in closed session Friday afternoon to discuss a civil suit verdict against Bosshard, two of his deputies and a jailer.

Damages totaling $99,000 were awarded the family of a man who died in the county jail when jurors found the four county employees had been negligent in their duties.

Although Small, defense attorney in the suit, was closeted with the county officials for nearly an hour, and the 2 p.m. meeting continued until 3:30 p.m., official comment was "no comment"

The six jurors in Judge Jack Roberts' federal district court awarded the damages Wednesday to the parents, wife and three children of Jimmie Darrell Fielder, a Round Rock painter who died while a prisoner in the Williamson County Jail in Georgetown. The plantiffs had alleged in a civil suit that Bosshard, Chief Deputy Daniel J. Walker, Deputy William Chandler and Jailer Bob Champion violated Fielder's constitutional rights by denving him

medical attention during the night of July 4,

BOSSHARD SAID. Wednesday he would appeal the decision. Small gave notice immediately after the verdict was read that he would file a motion with Roberts for judgement not withstanding the negligent verdict. This leaves the road open for the appeal, which would go to the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Small explained that the motion before Roberts, if accepted, would declare the Williamson County defendants not liable, despite the verdict, "because we feel the evidence was insufficient to warrant the verdict.

"The suit was based on failure to provide medical treatment. We don't think there's any evidence that medical treatment was necessary.

"We feel like the burden of proof was on the plaintiff."

Small called no defense witnesses during the trial, explaining that Bosshard and the other defendants, who were their own chief

Livestock Assoc. resists disbanding, to reorganize

Despite efforts to dishand the Williamson County Fair and Snow Association as a result of a Taylor Chamber of Commerce decision to abandon support of a one-county livestock show, the county-wide organization refused Association President Calvin Rinn's proposal that the group disperse.

Directors urged their president to recall that their organization was formed of representatives from throughout the county to unite the two livestock shows now held in the county, in Taylor and Georgetown, into one countywide event.

"We told him we still planned to have a show, since we have directors from each school district," reported Carl Lidell of Georgetown. "And he said if that was the case he would resign.

Now that Kissinger has persuaded Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith to give that country back to the native Africans I hope he doesn't show up here demanding that we turn Williamson County back to the Tonkawas, our native Americans. This proposition of searching for the original and rightful owner can be carried too far.

GEORGETOWN, for the first time in modern history, has surged past Taylor in school errollment. Our latest total was 2,586 compared to Taylor's public school enrollment, of 2,249. Taylor also has a Catholic school with an enrollment of 211, which, combined with the public school, still falls short of the total here. Round Rock, on the other hand, has more than both Taylor and Georgetown combined, an amazing 5,355 with more coming in every day.

Georgetown badly needs to develop or be lucky enough to be the recipient of some industrial plants that add not just people but a sound tax base. It is difficult to support a school program on taxes from residential and retail business property.

Public opinion asked on $2.3 million budget

Firmly in the black, Williamson County's proposed $2.3 million budget for the upcoming year represents a $55,073 increase over this year's spending plan — an increase more than offset by a revenue hike which could near the $540,000-mark.

Persons wishing to study the budget, which county commissioners will consider in public hearing Monday at 10 a.m., may examine the proposal in County Auditor Ben Kurio's first floor office. Commissioners will hear comments from any interested persons during the finance hearing in their first-floor courtroom Monday.

An unexpectedly high jump in county property valuations pushed tax revenues up not only from last year's expected $784,000, but also from the $740,000 which, in August, county officers were estimating would be received from taxpayers this year, to the $902,221.38 figured on the official county tax roll approved this month.

NOT ONLY TAX REVENUE — which continues to increase despite commissioners' recent nickel reduction in county property taxes — but the ever-growing officers' salary fund have contributed to the county's sound financial footing.

An expected $484,000 will flow into the fund

as a result of fees collected by such county officers as the peace justices, clerks and tax assessor. Increased by an estimated $250,000 year-end balance, this growing fund will easily take care of $491,800 worth of officers' and their deputies' salaries for the year.

County roads will be well kept, with revenues $989,261 expected to be available for road and bridge purposes.

Under a new plan, the money will not be equally split among the four precincts as has recently been the procedure.

Precinct 1, including the Georgetown area, will be receiving a budgeted $281,168 during the year as a result of the uneven split of the road and Bridge Common Fund as well as the Farmto-Market and Lateral Roads fund. Other county income earmarked for road construction and repair, including the $175,000 collected in vehicle registration fees and state lateral road funding. — will be evenly divided among the

In comparison to the $281 thousand budgeted for Precinct 1, the Florence Precinct 2, which covers area immediately west of Georgetown, can expect $240,544 in road and bridge funding. For the Granger-area Precinct 3, which took the largest cut as a result of the uneven split, $227,003 has been budgeted. Precinct 4, Taylor, will receive funding equal to that designated for Precinct 2.

INCLUDED in the budget, as approved when commissioners met to consider county officers' requests, is a monthly $50 across-the-board salary hike for the county's 140-plus employees, a $100,000 transfer to the permanent improvement fund for construction of a countywide livestock show building, and provisions for the juvenile probation officer and central dispatch system which the county is operating under grant programs.

Cater firm drops suit against Foust

G&M Catering Service, Inc., of Austin has agreed to drop a $10,000 libel suit it filed against Williamson County Commissioner Wesley Foust in July in connection with charges stemming from the 1975 Willie Nelson Fourth of July picnic held in Liberty Hill.

In a joint motion pending before Travis County's 53rd District Court, the catering company and Foust together seek dismissal of the suit, without effect on G&M's concurrent libel suit against the three corporations which own and publish the Austin American-Statesman.

THE MOTION has not been granted yet, but a clerk for the Austin court said the judge was attending a conference and might not have had time to consider the motion. Foust's attorney, Jack Garey, said dismissal would be "just a perfunctory matter."

The catering company charged Foust with libel, slander and malicious prosecution after he unsuccessfully sued G&M for violation of the Texas Mass Gatherings Act following Nelson's concert.

Week's news in a nutshell

Enrollment in the Williamson County school systems increased by 1,618 in a year's time, latest figures show. Round Rock had about 1000 of those, Georgetown had 253, Leander 142, Liberty Hill and Taylor, 100 each, Florence was up by 84. A few towns had a slight decrease. In all, 15,103 kids are attending the county's public schools at this time.

BUILDING PERMITS continue to grow in Taylor, with $698,405 on the books in August, bringing the year's total to $2,417,351 for the year. By comparison, Georgetown's totals for the year now exceed $5 million.

And food prices continue to inch upward. The Labor Department says that inflation is still running at an annual rate of about 6 percent and food prices as a whole are believed to be up 3 to 4 percent from this time last year.

Round Rock and its subdivisions, looking for something new to promote community spirit and attract attention, came up with a hit this week . . . a Chigger Festival! "Come itch with us" is the theme und a lot of people showed up Saturday for the event.

SWINE FLU SHOTS are on their way, but who knows where or when?

The City of Round Rock budget hearing is set for Monday evening, 7 o'clock, in the public library. It calls for spending almost exactly a million bucks. Meanwhile, Round Rock citizens are planning a fight to keep the ambulance service operating in that city, instead of consolidating it with one now at Cedar Park, at some mid-point between the two fast-growing cities.

Scenic Drive extension may open early this week

An extension of Georgetown's Scenic Drive between West Seventeenth Street and Ranch to Market Road 2243 (the Leander Highway) is expected to open next week, perhaps as early as Tuesday.

Completion of the paved. two-lane divided thoroughfare will re-open portions of streets around the Westside Intermediate School which have been closed the past month during construction of the extension. It will also alter slightly some of the traffic routes in use before construction began.

"THE MAJOR CHANGES," explained Asst. City Manager W. L. Walden, "include these: beginning at Railroad Street, Seventeenth Street will be two-way instead of one-way along its entire length. Nineteenth Street, which used to circle the Westside School, will now dead end instead. Also, Railroad Street traffic will have to stop at Railroad's intersections with Seventeenth and Eighteenth Streets."

Walden said the completed extension will be an inexpensive boon to the city. "The extension will afford a loop around the west side of town from State Highway 29 to RM 2243, opening up that part of town to through traffic between those two roads," he said. "It used to be that if you wanted to get from Highway 29 to 2243, you had to come clear back up to old U. S. 81 (South Austin Avenue). Now you'll be able to just follow the South San Gabriel River on around

"We're basing all of our changes in that area on handling school traffic," Walden added.

Who won?

Who "won" the first round Thursday night of the first American presidential campaign debates in sixteen years?

That depends on your criteria for judging victory. Early returns from a Roper poll taken immediately after the Big Show indicate neither James Earl Carter nor Gerald Rudolph Ford walked away with the election in his pocket, as at least 30 percent of the viewers polled declared themselves as undecided as they were before the confrontation.

Both candidates appeared extremely stage-struck as the debate opened. Neither said anything strikingly new in presenting his position on the issues. It was disappointing that some crucial domestic issues, such as busing, were not touched upon.

But the debate did seem a fair, testing, generally well-handled business. It gave the American voter a chance to compare directly, to measure the men, with a flick of a switch. Perhaps the debates will in some measure lessen traditional apathy.

In any case, it's to be hoped that the television debates will not degenerate into a comparison of personalities, appearances, or rhetorical skill, as some social researchers suggest the Kennedy-Nixon debates did. The election of a president is far too important to turn on good looks or personal popularity.

It's also to be hoped that one television presentation will not determine the election results. There are more debates to come, both on and off the tube, which may reveal character traits or stands on the issues which we have not seen

Watch. Listen. Measure. Compare. Judge. You be the "winner" of these debates.

Blue jeans are 'in' to Red youth

By Eric Bourne

Blue jeans are "in" in Eastern Europe as a youth status symbol. They are also an indication that Communist leaders have as many problems with the young generation as the much-criticized "bourgeois" West

How they react differs from one regime to another, according to how dogmatic officials are about making youth conform to what the party thinks is good for them.

Some condemn the jeans craze - as they did long hair or any show of preference whatever for Western life-styles - as merely aping "petty bourgeois" ways alien to the moral "purity" of Communist so-

Others are only mildly disapproving and, pragmatically, take the view: "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em!" They make an effort to see youth fantasies for what they are and do something about improving outlets and opportunities for young people

Only imports will do

This latest fad is not simply for jeans but for imported jeans, from the United States or Western Europe. High import tariffs, apparently, are no deterrent.

A letter from a young Hungarian girl published by a Budapest daily newspaper was a vivid, and slightly sad, revelation of adopted 'worldly" attitudes

"In the pop world," she wrote, "one must hold one's position just as much as the older people do. . . . In society anyone who wants to count for something must be prepared to spend up to 1,500 forint [about $37]

on fashionable [i.e., foreign] jeans. ... This is mandatory.

Half the price mentioned represents customs duty and local sales tax. Officials claim that Hungarian-made jeans match the imported product - but youths insist on "foreign," which cost five times as much.

A working mother told a Budapest radio magazine program: "My 16-year-old son kept badgering me to buy him jeans, and I had to pay 1,200 forint. Even then I had to have help from 'connections.'

Western styles preferred

Trend by trend, most East European leaders have learned to live with vouth's inclination for things Western. Some have tried hard to foster native "pop," but with no great success, even among the Communist Party's own youth.

One recent visitor to the home of a young activist in one East-bloc capital asked to hear some indigenous recordings. "All right, you're our guest so I suppose we must play you some - we prefer these,' was the reluctant response. "These" were albums of some of the best-known recent Western hits.

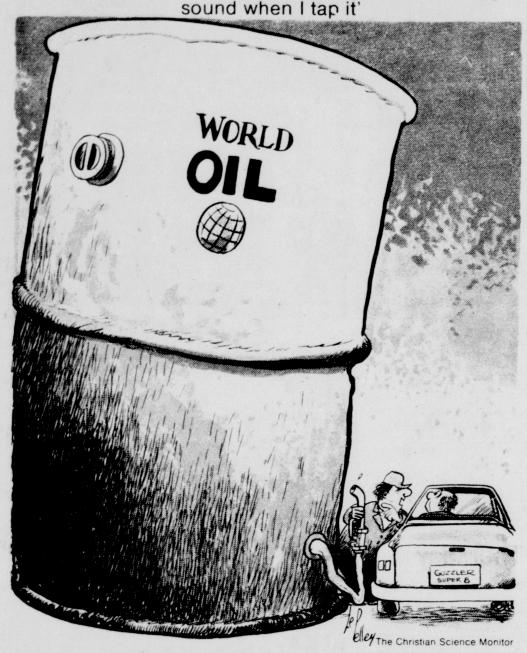

Behind this picture are more serious problems facing young people in Eastern Europe. Growing consumption of alcohol among teen-agers is one. Several countries are making commendable educational efforts to combat alcoholism. Drugs, fortunately, are not a serious problem

In the work sphere, more and more young people shun jobs in factories or the provinces. A poll of students in Romania's industrial cities found scarcely any content to be "workers," in spite of unremitting pressures from the regime for youngsters to go into direct production to serve the state's industrial goals.

In Czechoslovakia, students' choice of university disciplines is very much subordinated to "social needs" and national "plan"

A Hungarian university dean, however, backed up graduate doctors' reluctance to go to rural practice. He said they should first be given several years' city hospital experience and then be asked only to take provincial posts with satisfactory housing and other amenities.

The Democratic candidate, Jimmy McLean had been a solid

At the state Democratic convention in Fort Worth, Briscoe won the big test on selection of a state chairman by getting the solid votes of rural counties and organized labor.

In Minnesota, they call it the Democratic - Farmer - Labor Party, and it has been in control of state and national offices in that state for 30 years. By such a coalition, Briscoe was able to re-elect Calvin Guest of Bryan to an unprecedented third term and feels that it has helped him as state Democratic chairman, prevent new taxes during his and thus prevailed on the argu- four years as governor. ment that you don't change Price Daniel, now a member quarterbacks when you are ahead

It is interesting that John Connally, who made Democratic party loyalty socially acceptable in 1962 and 1964, when he was fighting off strong Republican attacks in his November races for governor, has now undertaken to make party disloyalty socially acceptable again, as it was when Gov. Allen Shivers sold it in 1952 and 1956

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to the group of Georgetown citizens who have found an ideal facility for producing their plays. I am speaking of the old Jonah school building - a few miles from your city.

visiting my son Frank Gibson and his wife at Jonah, they took me to see a play in rehearsal at the old building. I was amazed. For many years, I have been - in one way or another - in-

A few days ago, when I was volved in community theaters. Never have I seen a more convenient building for a drama Not only does the old building have adequate auditorium, stage, dressing rooms, storerooms, but also a kitchen where first nighters and cast members can celebrate their successes. Furthermore, there is plenty of parking space on the old campus

Since my retirement from teaching creative writing and English at Sam Houston State University, my husband and I have been living at Corsicana where we are helping to turn an old warehouse into an art center. I'm afraid we feel a little envious of a ready-made facility. We also think it is good for an organization such as the Georgetown group to put to use a tax-paid-for school building.

We found Mrs. Karen Stevens directing the first play of the season, and a young man building stage scenery from a blueprint. His wife was helping with the production.

I hope every man, woman and child, who has time, will volunteer to help build a theater that could well rival such theaters as the one at Granbury Opera House. I can imagine people from Austin frequenting a theater such as I am sure Georgetown is capable of sponsoring. I am sure the entire county is involved.

MIG-25: how does it fly so fast, so high?

Super capability hints new metal, new technology

By Dana Adams Schmidt Staff correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

The secrets of the Soviet MIG-25 Foxbat - most notably how it can fly so fast and so high while carrying four air-to-air missiles as armament - are being unraveled by American technologists behind the screen of strictest Japanese security

The men from the foreign technology division of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio are systematically studying every inch of the stubby Foxbat. The fighter was flown by Lt. Victor Ivanovich Belenko of the Soviet Air Force from Skharoyka Airbase in Siberia 620 miles to Hakodate civil airfield on Japan's northernmost island Sept. 6.

The Japanese, who have kept the Foxbat in an enclosed hangar, reportedly are planning to take the plane apart and move it in an American C-5 transport to a Japanese air base.

The United States has a plane which can fly as high and as fast (mach 3.2 or more than 2,000 miles an hour) as the MIG-25. It is the SR-71. But it cannot do it while armed with missiles. The U.S. also has a plane that can climb as fast as the MIG-25 - the F-15, but again, without weapons. Early in 1973, the MIG-25 flew to an altitude of 98,000 feet in 243.4 seconds. Two years later this record was surpassed by the F-15, but the MIG-25 claims (without international endorsement) to have outdone this record subsequently. U.S. technologists have known about the MIG-25 since 1973

it. Americans have fought the MIG-21, and the Egyptians have had access to the MIG-23. But the 25 remains a mystery. How far, they would like to know, have the Russians solved the problems of very high-speed, high-altitude flight, when the pilot may black out in the turns and fuel evaporates at an extraordinary rate?

when it began to set records, but they do not know much about

Fuel has to be injected into the engine at subsonic speed because otherwise it builds up an unmanageable cone of air

Shroud of mystery to be peeled away from Foxbat performance

fects that would show on enemy radar screens as half a dozen

At extreme high speed heat builds up on the skin of an airplane to a point where ordinary metals disintegrate. The U.S. solves this problem by using titanium metal or boron alloys. Do the Russians do likewise, or might they have discovered a new metal?

Does the MIG-25 have a "look-down, shoot-down" capability? Equivalent U.S. aircraft do not. But if the Soviet jet can do so it would make a radical difference to U.S. bomber tactics. The B-52 and B-1 would, for instance become vulnerable.

American fighter aircraft have not been equipped with lookdown radar because of so-called ground distortion, but equipment aboard the new AWACS (Airborne Warning and Control System) aircraft has solved the problem.

Except for a general belief that Soviet radar is inferior, little is known about the MIG-25's ability to see beyond human sight. Nor is much known about its electronic warfare equipment - devices that could fool enemy radar with noise or ef-

Beyond the engineering questions, American experts are pondering the answers to more abstract problems. What, for instance, might be the effect of this incident on other Russian pilots? Will the Soviet Air Force be afraid to let them fly alone in future? Might a pilot who broke formation - as Lieutenant Belenko did - be shot down?

In the Belenko case, he was the last of a formation of three Foxbats when he broke formation and dived to an altitude of 150 feet at wheih his colleagues could not find him. Again, when he approached the Japanese coast the Russian dropped to low altitude, thereby outwitting Japanese interceptors.

The ease with which the Soviet pilot entered Japanese airspace - and the probability that it would be no more difficult to break into American airspace - may trigger efforts to improve both Japanese and American air defenses.

Rare Royal Doulton figurines presented to Southwestern

philanthropist, patroness of the arts, and longtime trustee of Southwestern University, has presented to the university her collection of Royal Doulton figurines — eight famous Great Ladies of English

These invaluable art objects, created especially for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, were obtained by Mrs. Thomas when she was present for the historic event in 1952.

The presentation ceremony for the figurines was held on Tuesday, September 21, at 10 a.m. in the Gallery of the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center, a three-story building erected in 1956 and the gift of Mrs.

Presiding during the ceremony was Dr. Durwood Fleming, university president, who said: "Southwestern University is very fortunate to have been chosen as 'the permanent residence for these Great Ladies.' This is a rare gift from one of our dearest friends and enriches our art

Dr. Fleming spoke of Mrs. Thomas as an outstanding personality, a great force in the life of the university, a source of inspiration with her power of perception and fierce dedication to her philosophy that "life is good if you put everything into it," a practitioner of the philosophy of giving, a patroness of the arts, an educator and world traveler.

Dr. Theodore D. Lucas, dean of the School of Fine Arts, paid tribute to Mrs. Thomas on behalf of students and faculty and expressed appreciation to her for this rare and precious collection of figurines, saying 'This gift will long enhance the Fine Arts Center and will be housed in the Gallery with other examples of Mrs. Thomas' generosity

Claude Kennard, art historian in the School of Fine Arts and director of the Gallery in the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center, gave a brief history of the Royal Doulton Company founded in 1815 and authorized in 1901 by King Edward VII to use the term "royal" in designating its manufactures.

Paying tribute to Mrs. Thomas for her thoughtfulness and magnanimity in presenting the collection, Kennard concluded his remarks with a 'jingle' containing descriptive stanzas on each of the eight great ladies with a final stanza on Mrs. Thomas.

Designers of the display area housing the figurines are Jessen Associates, Inc., Austin, along with longtime Austin friends of Mrs. Thomas, H. E. Jessen, architect, and A. J. Williams, architect and craftsmen.

MATILDA (1080-1118), Queen of Henry I, better known as 'Good Queen Maud." The verdict of her subjects was: "The goodness she did to England cannot all be written here, nor by any man understood." Welleducated for her time, she won the friendship and support of learned men, and wielded a discreet but considerable influence over her husband, the famous Lion of Justice.

ELEANOR OF PROVENCE (1222-1291), Queen of Henry III, steeped in the tradition of courtly literature and with great beauty, her marriage to Henry III should have been the prelude to a brilliant reign. Unfortunately, she brought with her a host of needy relatives. The taxes necessary to support the Queen's large retinue brought her great unpopularity, VI. When Edward IV was killed while the incompetent king was reputed to be entirely under her control. In her declining years. her charity did much to wipe out her former unpopularity. FLORENCE

NIGHTINGALE (1820-1910)— Although Florence Nightingale was born with rank and wealth, her "crest" is most logically the Order of Merit, earned by her own efforts. In her, "charm was united with elegance, and a gracious personality was illuminated by a vigorous intellect." Her history needs hardly to be told. At St. Thomas' Hospital, the Nightingale Home for training nurses, which she founded, is today the living monument to her greatness.

THE LADY ANNE NEVILL (1456-1485), Queen of Richard III, the short life of beautiful Anne of Warwick, last of the Plantagenet queens of England, was one of the tragedies of the Wars of the Roses. She was first married to Edward, Prince of Wales, son of Henry in battle, Richard usurped the throne and forced Anne to marry him, thus making her play the role of Queen, and killed his nephews in the Tower. Later her infamous husband paid for his crimes at the Battle of Bosworth. HENRIETTA MARIA (1609-1666), Queen of Charles I - At 16 years of age, youngest daughter of Henry IV of France, Henrietta Maria was married to that "fair and fatal," artistic and obstinate king, Charles I. Unskilled in statecraft, her great contribution to English history is the memory that, always Fench, her taste in dress was never at fault. In her honor, Lord Baltimore named his new colony "Maryland." She lived to see her son enjoy his rights as Charles II.

PHILIPPA OF HAINAULT (1314-1369), Queen of Edward III - Chivalry had reached its full maturity when Philippa was Queen of England. Under her patronage, the poetry of

and literature of the nation. Her husband was Edward III and her eldest son was the Black Prince, whose armies triumphed repeatedly but whose captives were invariably treated with the courtesy befitting their rank and valor. Her strong influence over Edward III is clearly reflected by the rapid deterioration in his character after Philippa was carried to her grave in Westminster.

MARGARET OF ANJOU (1430-1482), Queen of Henry VI - Last and most luckless of the queens from Provence. Margaret of Anjoy went to England as the pledge of peace from France to become the bride of Henry VI. This saintly king, founder of Eton College, was no military leader. To maintain her son's claim to the succession, Margaret devoted her beauty, high spirits and reckless bravery to a losing her armies were destroyed, Henry VI was murdered at his prayers, and Margaret was imprisoned in the Tower. Today Queen's College, Cambridge, honors her as founder and constitutes her only memorial in England. MRS. FITZHERBERT (1756-1837) — A wealthy widow. Maria Fitzherbert was descended from an ancient Shropshire family, the Smythes of Acton Burnell. She lived at Richmond and became the reigning toast. The Prince of Wales, the future George IV, fell desperately in love with her: but, since she was a devout Catholic, he could not marry her, for the Act of Settlement forbade any member of the Royal Family marrying a Catholic. When he threatened suicide, she relented, and they were canonically married in the presence of her uncle and brother. She never used her position for personal ends. Whatever good influence appeared in the Prince's life came from her. Subsequently he abandoned her for an official queen. Her dignity and selfefacement endeared Maria Fitzherbert to the Royal Family, and William IV gave her leave to wear widow's weeds for George IV who died with her miniature around his neck.

SOUTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY'S volleyball team defends against a serve as they improved their season record in San Antonio on Monday to four wins against two close losses. They beat the defending national junior college champions, San Antonio College, 15-11 and 15-5, and then whipped Lynda McGee, Janice Doughty, and Melissa Hardberger. Thursday night the S.U. girls defeated St. Phillips College in San Antonio 15-3 and 15-13 after dropping the first game 6-15, and then they beat Our Lady of the Lake 15-8 and 15-8 with Carroll Sheffield serving nine straight points to bring them from a 6-8 deficit in the second game.

Therd? If you missed it, keep watching.

SPEED GOES A LONG WAY in the game of football, and speed in this case goes by the name of Elvis Walker. Walker, shown getting another giant chunk of yardage, had one touchdown called back, and set up another one. The action was in the Bartlett Bulldog - Holland Hornet

Madcap merriment: The Muppet Show

JIM HENSON surrounded by a bunch of mugging Muppets.

Only in America could one rise from the obscurity of a Mississippi swamp to become the host of a musical variety show. The feat is particularly difficult if you happen to be a frog, and a dummy as well. That's no reflection on the poor lad's intelligence. It's just, you see, that Kermit happens to be a Muppet, the creation of a rangy, bearded fellow named Jim Henson.

Henson, his protege Kermit and a glorious array of singing, dancing and romancing Muppets have joined to create a delightful family program, entitled The Muppet Show. Designed to fulfill the intent of the FCC Prime Time Access Ruling and the Family Viewing concept as well, The Muppet Show is a perfect blend of musical comedy of the old vaudeville variety and whimsical imagination of the Peter Pan variety. The show has, so far, been syndicated nationwide to over 60 stations and is set to premiere in late September

Television has had a variety of series headed by puppets and marionettes before. It all began in 1947, when Howdy Doody poked his little wooden head in front of the cameras. Soon there was Lamb Chop and Charlie Horse, Kukla and Ollie. Rootie Kazootie and Polka Dotty. But none of the 'stars" were ever relieved of the burden of carrying their human counterparts on-screen. So viewers also saw Buffalo Bob, Shari Lewis, Fran Allison and the like. Not on The Muppet Show

As host of the show. Kermit is his own man. I mean frog. no. Muppet. Whatever. Jim Henson, who aside from creating Kermit some 19 years ago and innumerable Muppets since is literally the man behind the Muppet. Kermit's whiny voice is a I'm afraid of." Nuff said.

variation of Henson's and when he squinches up his face, it's Henson who is doing the squinching. But Henson has no desire to compete with his little friends on air. It's their show all the way

The format for the series is an update of the old movie musicals which involved putting on a show within the show. All the onstage and backstage performances are here in the grand tradition of "42nd Street," "Babes on Broadway" and other such films which convinced impressionable minds that anything was possible as long as you had a song in your heart, and maybe knew how to tapdance as well.

Some of the characters viewers will meet are: Kermit, of course, host of the show and theatre manager; Fozzie Bear, the stand-up comic; Scooter, an over zealous gofer who is kept around because his uncle owns the theatre; Hilda the wardrobe lady: Wayne and Wanda, a Muppet version Nelson Eddy-Jeanette McDonald singing duo; Piggy Lee, a voluble singer who also happens to be crazy about Kermit (little backstage romance here) and many, many more.

A concession is being made to humankind in that one real live personality will guest each week. The guests that have so far been set include Juliet Prowse, Connie Stevens, Joel Grey, Ruth Buzzi, Rita Moreno, Jim Nabors, Charles Aznavour and other biggies who have proven themselves to be no slouches in the entertainment field.

The best thing that can be said for The Muppet Show was said by none other than a rival. One of the network program heads was quoted saying that it "was the one show we don't have that

John Wayne plus Katharine Hepburn equals mutal admiration society

HE: "If Spence and Bogie could see me now, wouldn't they be jealous? She not only lights up the set, she lights up the day.

SHE: "He's gentle, he's quick, he never misses a trick. He's a giant redwood, I'm a pigmy, and I'm supremely happy. He's a monster and I love him.'

The HE is John Wayne and the SHE Katharine Hepburn, paired for the first time in Hal Wallis' production for Universal of 'Rooster Cogburn,' opening October 1 at the Liberty Theater in Liberty Hill.

Shot almost entirely on location in the Cascade Mountains and high deserts of Oregon, with raft sequences on the Rogue and Deschutes Rivers, the story was suggested by the character "Rooster Cogburn" from the novel "True Grit" by Charles Portis, and is another page in the life of the eye-patched marshal a role that won John Wayne an Academy Award.

The only three-time Academy Award winning actress in film history, Ms. Hepburn joins Wayne as the prudish and prim Eula Goodnight, Bible-thumping daughter of a minister.

As the story comes to life, something else surfaces - an affinity, tinged with reverence. romance and respect - between two of the greatest figures in the entertainment world today: Wayne and Hepburn, living legends in their own time.

"I was born to be his leading lady." chortles the volatile Kate. "Working with John is one of the greatest thrills of my life. He anticipates every move, every word, every action. And you know what? He's always right."

Hepburn paused for an instant at this point, then went on. "If I didn't love him, that would probably give me a complex

Trivia Teasers

TV Dial-ogue

STILL WORKING -- Now that Harry-O has been cancelled, what will become of Anthony Zerbe, who is probably the best actor on TV? Marilyn Dieter, San Antonio, Tex.

I agree with you about Zerbe's skill as an actor, but I wouldn't worry too much about his future. He's making the guest star rounds and has been signed for a role in ABC's "How the West Was Won," a series of three two-hour movies.

ROOTIE'S GANG -- I know this sounds like a nutty question, but my friends and I are going crazy trying to think of the other puppets' names on Rootie Kazootie, an old TV show from the '50s. Can you help?' Tony Cerra, Brooklyn, N.Y

Sure. Other than frecklefaced Rootie, Todd Russell's line-up of puppets included El Squeako Mouse, Gala Poochie and Polka Dottie.

PLAYBOY BIRNEY -visiting New York and a N.Y. 10017).

friend took me to Lincoln Center to see "The Playboy of the Western World." I vaguely recall that the fellow who played the lead was David Birney. Am I correct? Is this the same person as the actor now on TV? Mary Duncan. Springfield, Mo.

You have a good memory. Before Birney made it to Hollywood and television, he did quite a bit of stage work in New York. He indeed played the role of Christy in "Playboy."

BEING FRANK -- How tall is Gary Frank, who was in Family, and is he married? Jody Wells, Panama City, Fla

His bio has him listed as 5'9". Is that tall enough for you, because he's not mar-

TV Star Scene

Jack Ford, son of President Ford, has been engaged as a consultant for an episode of an ABC After School Special entitled "P.J. and the President's Son," which will air Wednesday, Nov. 10 (4:30-5:30). The story is an update of "The Prince and the Pauper," with two 15year-old boys living in Washington D.C. One, obviously, is the son of the President. Soon a switch is made and the fun begins. Among Jack Ford's helpful hints to the producers was describing what it's like to have a national monument for "home" and how to cope with the constant gaze of Secret Service agents.

Arlo Guthrie of "Alice's Restaurant" fame has been cast for a role in an upcoming Rich Man, Poor Man, Book II. He'll play himself in the episode. . . Marion Ross and Erin Moran not only have something in common as mother and daughter on ABC's Happy Days, they also share a strong passion off the set. Horses! Both spend their free time grooming and training their show horses. Marion calls her's "Aquarius," while "Apple Cider" is Erin's

Game show entrepreneur Chuck Barris -- The Dating Game, The Newleywed Game, The New Treasure Hunt -- says he never anticipated the fan mail aspect that comes from being an on-camera personality. "But it's basically great," he concedes. "even the thousands of letters asking about Siv Aberg." Siv Aberg is the former Miss Sweden who carries the gong award on Chuck's program, The Gong Show.

Frank Converse and Fred Williamson are teamed on an Oct. 5 edition of Police Story. They play police officers with the unlikely names of K-Joe Hirsch and Bunny Green.

FOOTBALL CONTEST

PICK THE WINNERS AND WIN A PRIZE

Here's How You Play:

HERE WE GO AGAIN! It's football time - and time for the annual County SUN Football Contest. If you're a Saturday morning armchair quar-terback, you can enter this fun Contest and check up on yourself! Might even win a little money at it or a free theater

Here's a game to test your skill -- it's a game that the whole family can enjoy. Spread this page out on the kitchen table. Let everybody play. There'll be a new contest each week until about the middle of November. So ready, get set, GO!

- Win $10, $5 or $3 for first, second or third respectively
- Next five winners may pick up a free ticket to the Palace Theater!
- Pick up all prizes and theater tickets at The SUN.
- The only notification of the winners will be in the following week's
- See this week's football games on
- In each game, check the team you think will win. (You do NOT need to indicate score).
- Unless all games are marked, your entry will be automatically disqualified.
- Then to eliminate as nearly as possible any ties in this fun-test, every entry must have the score marked on "The Tie Breaker" game listed at right.
- Only one entry per person will be qualified, but as many from a family may enter as wish to do so except employees and families of the Williamson County SUN
- You may enter the fun-test on this page. Or you may copy the games on another sheet of paper, in dicating your pick in each game

- All entries must be brought to The SUN by 5:00 p.m. Friday or mailed with a postmark not later than 7:00 p.m. Friday of each week. The SUN will grade all entries, and The SUN's decision will be Final and incontestable.
- Have FUN! And patronize the businesses who make this fun-test possible.

Games This Week

Put an 'X' in the parenthesis in front of the team which you think will win that game.

Terrible taxes:

You'll find your bill in this week's mail

The eight employees in Williamson County Tax Collector William P. Buck's office not only have to pay county taxes, they have to mail out all those statements.

And there's more to mailing the over-40,000 payment requests than the average taxpayer

Maybe the only advantage in that, from a don't have to lick all those stamps and by loading a stack of the alphabetically ordered address plates into the Address may be changed without requiring the entire address to be retyped. Seated at the Addressograph, (3) Chili feeds information into the machine, which reproduces each name and address on the Both sides (4) of the tax roll are used to list the names, and the tax roll is still — as later pictures reveal - inches thick Chili makes three copies of each page: one to be bound for the courthouse office and one for the county's Taylor annex, as well as a copy which is mailed to the state comptroller.

AFTER THE TAX roll forms have over 40,-000 taxpayers' names and mailing addresses filled in, it's Dorothy Kubacek's turn (5).

TAXPAYERS' addresses are kept on record in the new courthouse basement office of the tax assessor, in the rows and stacks of files shown in the first photograph (1) here.

Charles "Chili" Gahagan starts the work (2)

The mini-computer — a Burroughs tax machine — she uses to figure tax amounts from information stored in the machine was also moved to the new basement office earlier this year.

"This is making receipts and figuring taxes all at the same time - it figures the discounts," she explained when this photograph was snapped late in June, already her part of the tax-collection procedure was well un-

"All you have to do is just tell it what to do," laughed Buck. "That's the best thing we have gotten to help with taxes since I don't

For each taxpayer, Dorothy types in that persons' property value. The computer figures the rest, printing it on the tax roll as well as on the taxpayer's statement.

Each statement shows the amount of tax owed, plus a one-, two-, and three-percent early payment discount. All are figured by the computer from rendition information Dorothy types in. Bills paid by the end of October can deduct three percent and those paid in November should be minus two percent of the total, while December payments receive a one percent discount.

All taxes are due in January, and delinquent notices will be mailed early in February to tardy taxpayers.

WHILE THREE copies of the tax roll (6), Mary Lois Ray points out, are overwhelming, just one bound copy of the county's tax roll one-third the height of the stack pictured can be quite overwhelming.

It records $120,296,116 in property valuation throughout Williamson County.

The total was reported to and approved by county commissioners only this September, three months after work began on the tax roll on which the figures were recorded and total-

Meanwhile the triplicate tax roll had to be separated into three stacks (7) to be individually bound. That's not the only place Tax Assessor Buck got into the act - just only the picture he walked into.

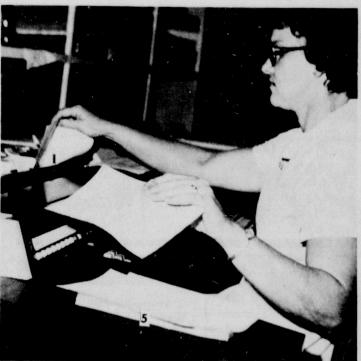

STACKS AND STACKS of statements filled the tax office waiting for Mary Lois (8) and other tax office personnel to stuff 40,000 envelopes ready for mailing.

In a final step, Chili, who began the process, completes it

Stacks of the envelopes are fed through a postage meter (9 and 10) which not only stamps but seals each tax statement.

Now it's the postman's job to get your statement to your mailbox.

Expect it early this week, because Buck hopes to begin mailing the statements Mon-

Liberty Hill NEWS BY HOWARD N. WILSON

Our community is a very busy place that is now something we can all take for granted. There is always many varied activities in and around the area which will surely include something for everyone.

The next Liberty Hill Market Day is scheduled for Saturday. October 2, and then, just two weeks later on Saturday, October 16, our Liberty Hill Arts and Crafts Fair will be the big attraction. This will be just five days after the beginning of our International Sculpture Symposium. In addition to the 18 sculptors from various parts of the world working on their sculptures, there will be many other artisans displaying their wares. Anyone who wants to get a booth for your handicrafts should make reservations just as soon as you possibly can - a large crowd is expected.

For those of you who get the Sunday Sun" in the Saturday mind you the Liberty Hill VFW

Post No. 8200 will have its regular "Games Night" in the Liberty Hill School Cafetorium this evening. The VFW members will also have their meeting on Saturday evening.

The Liberty Hill Junior High and the Junior Varsity Football Teams will play in Thorndale with the games beginning at 6 p.m. Be a Panther Booster to to ALL of the games!

The Liberty Hill Masonic Lodge No. 432 will have a covered dish supper beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday, October 9, in the Liberty Hill Lodge Hall. All Lodge members are urged to come, bring their wives and a covered dish.

The MENU for the Liberty Hill School Cafeteria for the week of September 27 - October 1, reads as follows: MONDAY - Barbecued sausage, potato salad, spinach. fruit, cornbread and milk: TUESDAY - Fried chicken,

The Sunday SUN

Sunday, September 26, 1976 Page 11 mashed potatoes, green beans, cake and milk

WEDNESDAY- Chili dogs. salad, corn, fruit, cookies and THURSDAY - Hamburgers with lettuce, tomatoes, pickles and onions, french fries, ice cream and milk FRIDAY - Barbecue on a bun, potato salad, cole slaw, peach cobbler and milk. The Liberty Hill Ex-Students'

Association held its annual meeting on September 11, with the president, Jean Jay, calling the meeting to order for the consideration of business. After all business was dispensed with in due procedure, a yellow mum corsage was presented to Myreta Matthews, who is a graduate from the class of 1920. and a boutonniere was presented to Floyd Perry, who is a graduate from the class of 1923, as representatives of the earliest classes attending.

One unusual circumstance was noticed in the presence of one of Miss Matthews former first grade students from her very first class.

Craig Hanley was recognized for having traveled the farthest to attend; Craig came from

Morgan City, Louisiana

The Ex-Students agreed to aid and promote the work being done to obtain a historical medallion for the Liberty Hill School. A plea is being made for financial support in this effort to all exes. Contributions may be made to Myreta Matthews or Jean Jay at Liberty Hill, Texas 78642. A large crowd of ex-students and friends attended the homecoming football game between the Exes and the Rock House Rockets Saturday evening. This game is to be an annual event in connection with the homecoming.

Ex-cheerleaders are being sought to lead the cheers at next year's game. Anyone who is willing to help in locating former cheerleaders should contact Linda Spivey or Paula (Lane) Spivey. If everyone will help we could have at least a half dozen ex-cheerleaders next fall for the game!

The 4-H Club has as their motto, "Learn by doing," and we know that "Practice makes perfect!" Experience is still the best teacher!

Bread at $1.39 a loaf, $75 a night for a hotel room and up to $1.16 an Imperial gallon* for gas, potholes which made driving 40 miles an hour scandalous and mud that "stuck so hard it took us about 45 minutes to pry it off each wheel" - yet they'd drive back again and enjoy it

What place could have such charm? For W. K. and Rosamond McClain, Alaska offered rewards to offset every hardship met during their 13,000-mile, three-month trip.

"And here, with all its majesty, was this soaring beautiful white monster."

Leaving Georgetown June 15, the local attorney and his wife drove their Travco motor home to join a Travco-sponsored caravan heading for a tour of the northernmost parts of the United States and the North American

Traveling with Rosamond's sister, Francis Schmidt of Plainfield, Illinois, the couple had time to attend the National Square Dance Association meeting in Anaheim, California, and visit some former Leander residents living nearby — the Steward Walkers — before joining 75 other Travco owners in Dawson Creek, British Columbia, to head for the Ar-

The company-sponsored caravan, organized only for the travel home owners, included a mechanic, doctor, registered nurse - and someone to drive ahead to announce to gasoline stations, "There are 76 travel homes coming up the road, all needing gas. Who'll give the best discount?

"WE JOINED this caravan and went on up the Al-Can in stages of 250 miles a day, approximately," explained W. K. From its start at Dawson Creek, the Al-Can is 1,422 miles long. "This is a dirt and gravel road, incidentally: 1,422 miles of it.

Heading through Tok, the travelers made a stop at Whitehorse in the Yukon for historyfilled two-day side excursion into gold rush country.

'We left our motor homes at Whitehorse and flew (south) to Juneau, spent a day in Juneau and left about 12:30 at night. The sun was just going down - and that's midnight.

Separated from Georgetown by more than miles, the adventurers made a stop in the Alaskan capital city of Juneau - "not the biggest city of Alaska because Anchorage They also got a look at the "beautiful modern city" of Anchorage, where "more people live than in the rest of Alaska com-

"They begged, and every dog that didn't get selected was just like a child; they felt deprived that they didn't get to start off."

From Juneau they took a boat up the Inland Passage famed from gold rush days, to Skagway.

'This was the point, really, where most of the old people in gold rush days went to get into Alaska and the Yukon," W. K. noted of the Inland Passage

"Now, Skagway is getting into the old gold rush country; this is the country that has so much history. This was really where we

Unlike the standard American gallon, which contains 231 cubic inches, the larger Imperial gallon is 277.4 cubic inches.

CARAVANING was easier after W. K. got his Canadian citizens band license, for the McClains used the communication system nearly as much as they used the recreational vehicle which was their home for the three months their trip lasted. The carved totem pole symbolizes the Eskimo world view, with an eagle perched atop the pole and a frog at bottom - either way it's turned. Rosamond found the vehicle's kitchen, including this little refrigerator, cozy with everything a fingertip away.

started seeing the country of the gold rush. All the culture and the background of this country was so different from anything we had ever seen

We took a train, then, from Skagway back to Whitehorse," W. K. continued a thumbnail travelogue of the three-month drive as Rosamond quickly inserted the fact that the Whitehorse and Yukon Railroad is still a narrow-gauge railway. "This train ride took about five hours. The railroad was built here in order to get over the Whitehorse Pass.'

other mountains, glaciers and their ice-fed rivers captured the enthusiasm of the Texan caravanists.

Especially memorable was Mt. McKinley and the beautiful national park surrounding the oft-hidden peak.

'You can only see it from miles away," said Rosamond, launching into a tale of how seldom the largest mountain on the American continent can be seen. "We were lucky," she begins a tale of how, about 60 miles away from the more-than 20,000-foot giant, they stopped their motor home at a posted lookout.

And here, with all its majesty, was this

'Kelly said, 'Wait till we get a little bit closer,' to take a picture. And we never saw it

While backpackers, for instance, can get special permission to hike farther into the wilderness, the park service also provides free bus tours for the less adventurous. It was during one of these the McClains saw so much wild game

Rosamond reported, "You are only allowed

'And we saw a marvelous demonstration of dogsled driving in an area before you get into the park." Rosamond recalled. "They had all those enormous dogs of mixed breeds all chained to their individual houses.

Although so many envision the standard Alaskan "huskie" as a vicious semi-wild animal, "these had been especially bred to be kind and affectionate. They just loved to be

She proves it with a picture of herself and others reaching to fondle a heavily furred, tail-wagging sled dog.

EXCITED HERSELF, she recalls the dogs' excitement when the handler stepped forward to choose which dogs would pull the sled for the demonstration.

"They begged and every one wanted to go. Every dog that didn't get selected was just like a child; they just felt deprived that they didn't get to start off. There were four times as many dogs as they needed.

Then he told them to get back, and he said, 'Mush!' and they went so fast!" When they start off, they start off with enthusiasm," her husband agreed.

FROM MT. McKINLEY the tour could go only slightly north.

"We drove up to Fairbanks and this was the end of the trail. That's as far north, with the exception of Circle, as you can go with your motor home," said W. K.

"One hundred miles further — if you can stand the road," adds Rosamond, "is Circle. They named it Circle because they thought it was on the Arctic Circle; but they missed it by 60 miles.

A certificate proves that the McClains didn't miss the Arctic Circle at all. They flew from Fairbanks to Point Barrow, which lies within the frigid circle on the Bering Sea. "It was desperately cold," reported the attorney's wife, showing photographs of the couple wearing borrowed parkas and inspecting racks of game — goose, salmon, reindeer - drying in preparation for the winter.

"They live a very primitive life," she noted, displaying one picture taken near where she saw an animal being skinned with a flat-bladed Eskimo hand ax.

As the spring thaw was just taking effect, they saw provisions for another year of winter being boated in.

"It was desperately cold."

Farther south, in Valdez, the traveling companions noted "the terminal point of the Alaskan pipeline from the North Slope. That's an 800-mile pipeline that is going to transport the oil from the North Slope. This is in the freshwater port of Valdez. It's really a thriving town of about 10,000 people, one of the old gold rush towns, too.

W. K. also noted that Valdez, on the Kenai Peninsula "is the most marvelous fishing area in the world." Pictures attest to the fact, as he is shown hefting a day's catch the full three-salmon limit, each fish weighing an estimated 12 or 14 pounds - and the couple are photographed with friends partying on fresh-caught salmon prepared, Rosamond told, in a variety of about four or five

On the homeward trip, the caravan stopped in Dawson City.

"Dawson City is really in the Yukon," noted W. K. "It has preserved all of the frontier aroma and spirit. The houses are all of the 1800-1905 vintage.

"STREETS ARE STILL DIRT and gravel and they had sidewalks made of planks,

'There was a place called 'Diamond-Tooth Gurtie's Saloon." Diamond-Tooth Gurtie's was a very famous place for gambling in the old days and by a special act of the Yukon they have legalized gambling at Dawson City. But it can only be done at Diamond-Tooth Gurtie's place. You go into this place and here are all of the gambling devices. And a sawdust floor. And can-can girls. It has all of the spirit of the early 1900's.

"We drove out and we saw these different streams where the gold had been discovered - and they have absolutely torn up those valleys," said the Georgetown attorney of a less cheerful aspect of their vacation. "They have dug those valleys up and washed them. We have left them in pretty terrible condition. They are no longer the beautiful places they were.

"Diamond-Tooth Gurtie's Saloon was a very famous place for gambling in the old days. It has all of the spirit of the early 1900's."

Rosamond became a weed-watcher during the trip, enchanted with a northern wildflower named "fireweed.

"One of the most interesting parts to me was the beautiful vegetation," she said. "Of course the trees were nine-tenths conifers. But to my great surprise they had great forests of birch trees. And in front of them would be this brilliant red flower

"I thought it was called fireweed because of the color, but they told me when there's a fire the first thing to grow back up is the fireweed.

Bluebonnets are not in it when you talk about covering the land," she said, remembering the reddish-purple landscapes

"Indian paintbrush was the only one I recognized as being a Texas wildflower, too. They did have lupines, which are similar. Bluebonnets are of the lupine family.

"We had to come right back down the same Al-Can, down from Dawson City to Dawson Creek. We came through Jasper National Park and Banff and Lake Louise,' travelogued W. K.

"THEY HAVE FABULOUS lakes way up in the mountains and in the springtime the debris from the snow changes the lake color into just as blue a turquoise as you can imagine," said Rosamond. "Lake Louise is considered by many people the most beautiful lake in the world, and I wouldn't be one to argue.

'This is more like Switzerland," mused W. K., inspecting a series of photos taken in the mountainous areas.

The Laird River, which we crossed several times, had a little notice that said 'camping area and hot pool,' " Rosamond described one nearly unique highlight of their adventurous three months. There was a boardwalk a quarter of a mile across marshy land to a place where there was a beautiful little pool. It was a very cold, rainy, messy day - about 45 degrees outside. But we shivered and changed and went rushing down into the warm water.

'All of a sudden we stopped: it was 95 degrees and I thought I was being boiled." Like others before them — although she noted only a few others were in the pool because they were there early one morning the couple quickly adjusted to the water temperature "It was the most marvelous sensation," said Rosamond, adding that the natural pool included sulphur and other minerals.

And then the fun was watching others come in, because they all went through the same routine. Winter scenes depicted on postcards of the area show ice and snow surrounding the pool of steaming hot water. "Although the roads were rough, I would do it again," they agree, but note they were away from their home for a very long time. "Five more days and it would have been three months," said the couple who arrived back in Georgetown only on the tenth of September

We were so happy to get home. We'd seen glaciers, mountains, waterfalis, but the water tower when we got home was the most beautiful sight."

Health unit requests use of courthouse for flu clinic In addition to opening their session to con-

Permission to use the centrally located building to administer the free inoculations was requested at the court's last meeting by Diane Sansom, a county health office

Appearing to favor the idea, commissioners nonetheless could take no action on the request until it had been logged on a formal agenda posted 72 hours in advance of their meeting. FUTURE EMPLOYMENT of county workers now paid through the federal government's Comprehensive Employment Training Act will be discussed since funding for the program is running out.

Not only the assistant county attorney but jailers and clerical workers are employed for the county through the program.

During commissioners' last meeting on September 13. Commissioner Wesley Foust had reiterated his opinion that only the jailers and assistant county attorney should be transferred to the county payroll.

Commissioner Robert Rozacky added that the CETA employee working for Precinct 3 would be retained, and explained that the man would replace someone who had recently resigned

Election precinct field notes will be considered for approval and polling locations designated as a result of August 12 authorization as well as subsequently adopted changes which added three election precincts to the county's voter divisions.

LIABILITY INSURANCE is one topic listed for discussion by County Sheriff August Bosshard: the other involves expenses for a trip made to Colorado in order to pick up Oscar

Ray Burleson, who was indicted May 7 in Williamson County's 26th District Court for aggravated robbery

Bosshard had requested that the county purchase liability insurance in 1977 when commissioners first discussed new budget items at their July 16 study session.

"It's a question as to whether we can expend county funds; we'll do what we can," Foust told Bosshard then.

Discussion of the Sutton County land, which benefits county schools, is scheduled for the Monday session, in addition to several road and subdivision considerations.

'We decided Taylor could have a livestock show every week and we still would have a show in Georgetown," Lidell reported Fair and Show Association members' response during the Thursday session.

The countywide Association had already obtained a $100,000 commitment from county commissioners to support construction of a new building located in the county seat, Georgetown

Although Association directors stressed the fact that the central Georgetown site was selected by all member representatives from the county, a resolution proposing that the new livestock building be constructed in Taylor was subsequently passed by members of that city's commerce chamber.

Association members seeking to clarify county commissioners' intentions in allocating the $100,000 recently asked the county fathers if the money could be split, $50,000 for Taylor and the same for the Georgetown construction.

Pointing out that the allocation was made because they had been assured a single livestock show would result, and that "the old east-west controversy" in Williamson County was forgotten, commissioners refused.

said, in effect," Dr. Hal Gaddy observed Thursday morning, "was that anyone in jail who wants to see a doctor should have that privilege. There's no way this could work. We wouldn't have a prisoner stay overnight in jail any time. Why stay in jail when you have the right to stay in the hospital?"

Gaddy added, "We have seen three good, hard-working, honest public servants and their families destroyed by this decision.'

MY COFFEE CROWD felt the county should pick up the tab, if, indeed, the men actually have to pay. There's an appeal of the decision ahead, of course. Incidentally, the City of Georgetown provides protection to its officers against suits of this type with an insurance program. The county does not, although the subject was discussed recently. Confronted with the possibility of a damage suit every time he needs to use force, or make a decision such as the one the jury ruled on, coupled with all the other hardships and personal risks involved, it takes some kind of man to join up with a law enforcement group these

CONSTRUCTION PLANS for a new Georgetown Area Hospital call for the facility to be built facing the Scenic Drive extension, just south of the Westside School.

'We provided the right of way and we'll pay $300-$400 or less for curbing," said Walden. "The state pays for the rest. It's really a service from the state. All it will cost us is that small amount for curbing. I wish we could get more streets like that."

Emmitt Mahlmann, an engineering technician for the state's Department of Highways and Public Transportation, said he expects the road will open Tuesday. "We still have some striping to finish, we'll most likely do that on Monday, but our asphalt paving is finished,' said Mahlmann. "Usually they're a day or so late on these things, so it might be later than Tuesday. And of course, if something weatherwise happens between now and then, that might affect it, too. But I would say it will open sometime next week.

witnesses, were called by the prosecution first. They called them and we examined them just as if they were our witnesses," he said. Precinct 2 Commissioner Wesley Foust confirmed in a SUN interview before the meeting that purchase of liability insurance for the sheriff's department and support of Bosshard and his deputies in the Fielder case would probably be considered.

"I think we ought to support our people all the way," said Foust. "I'm convinced they did a good job in that case.

Asked whether he would propose county payment of the damages assessed in the Fielder case. Foust said, "We've asked the County Attorney to get an Attorney General's opinion on exactly what our position is in this case. Personally. I don't think we'll accept the verdict rendered Wednesday as final.

CONCERNING PURCHASE of liability insurance, Foust said, "We have been led to believe in the past that we could not legally purchase liability insurance, but I think it's gotten to the point now where we must make every effort to see they (the sheriff's department) have got adequate coverage. I feel we'll make every effort to purchase liability insurance to cover every act they do in providing law enforcement to Williamson County. 'They've got to have some protection over cluded horseback riding, there in some ways," Foust continued, "How else do you expect those people to enforce the law? I don't want to do anything to deter law enforcement. It's more important now than ever. I hope Wednesday's decision doesn't deter these people's effectiveness to see that the law is abided by. I'm with them the whole

The six-person jury rendered judgment against Bosshard, Walker. Champion and Chandler after four hours' deliberation Wednesday morning

During two days of trial Monday and Tuesday, the four men and two women had heard a parade of plaintiffs' witnesses detail Jimmie Darrell Fielder's last days

Testimony revealed that Fielder was arrested at his Round Rock home on July 2, 1974, for failure to pay child support for his three children.

He was found dead in a second-floor cell of the Williamson County jail on the morning of

AUTOPSY REPORTS said Fielder died when his lungs filled with blood from a bleeding ulcer

Fielder's mother testified that she told jail authorities her son was sick and tried to get a doctor's note to prove it. Fellow inmates testified that Fielder hallucinated during his confinement. They said that both they and Fielder asked without success for medical attention for Fielder.

Bosshard, Walker and Champion testified that they knew of Fielder's claims of illness, but attributed his behavior to delirium tremens, the "DT's" which affect heavy

Plaintiffs' attorney Waggoner Carr argued that the defendants violated Fielder's constitutional rights by not providing him medical attention.

Small told jurors they must decide whether deprivation of medical care contributed to Fielder's death. He contended that Fielder probably would have died at that time no matter where he was, aruguing that the rupture of Fielder's ulcerated blood vessel was due to acute alcoholism and had nothing to do with the jail

Jurors assessed $40,000 in actual damages and $20,000 in punitive damages against Bosshard; $20,000 in actual damages and no punitive damages against Walker; $10,000 in actual damages and $9,000 in punitive damages against Champion; and no damages against

They asked that $30,000 of the damage payments be set aside for the education of Fielder's children.

Carr said he would file a petition with Judge Roberts to finalize the damage assessments "very soon," but defendants may seek a hearing before Roberts to argue the amounts of pany, Crackerjack Productions, also charged in Foust's suit were both convicted in Williamson County Court earlier this year of violating the act and were fined $1,000 each. But County Judge C. L. Chance dismissed the criminal charge against G&M last September 22.

In its $10,000 suit, G&M accused Foust of malicious prosecution, abuse of the legal process, and libel and slander. The company said Foust published false statements which were communicated to persons in G&M's residence county, Travis.

G&M also charged with the libel the corporations which own and publish the American-Statesman: Newspapers, Inc., Texas Newspapers, Inc., and Cox Enterprises. It contended that the Austin newspaper falsely identified G&M as a producer and promoter of the Fourth of July Picnic and falsely accused the company of violating the Mass Gatherings

FOUST SAID the catering company agreed to drop its suit against him and to pay his legal costs after he made clear that he had not tagged the company a "promoter" of the Nelson event and had relied on the findings of County Attorney Norman Manning in filing the suit.

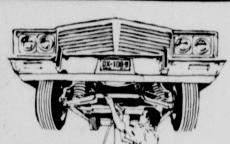

"They dropped it because they had no grounds for suit against me." said Foust. "I said earlier that when the true facts came up. they would show there were no grounds. Norman selected who the complaints would be filed against, I just signed the order.

"THESE PEOPLE clearly were not promoters," he added. "It was clear in public hearings before the festival that Willie Nelson and Crackerjack were the only promoters."

But Foust said the suit had not changed his attitude toward outdoor music festivals. "They (concert promoters) are going to meet opposition in these festivals from now on," he said. "I don't condone those type operations; I saw with my own eyes what they do. I don't deny anyone's right to have them, but they ought to have them where they can have the proper conveniences, facilities and security for the crowds. I think their rights end where other people's begin.'

Concerning the apparent termination of the suit, Foust said, "I'm real proud it has been handled in this manner. I hope the final disposition will be like I think.

In Memoriam to Randy Graham

The sad silence of death brings tears and sadness to the family and friends who knew him. The memories of his youth will remain immortal like seeing a beautiful rainbow and a butterfly in the springtime. The smile that would light up his face during the happy times will be never forgotten and always cherished. We at Piggly Wiggly will remember you as one of the finest young men of our association.

> Life is Like A SUMMER DAY

The hot blazing sun rays beat down on fresh plowed ground, while a Robin winged her way across the field, looking for a worm to feed her newborn; nestled in the fork of an Apple Tree.

A young boy walked along a dusty road; his fishing pole swinging gently; as he skipped along in the hot sand, day dreaming about the big fish he hoped to catch in the cool stream, running slowly across hills and meadows that were green with summertime beauty.

A days washing hung on the line blowing dry from the hot summer breeze. which hung next to the farm house over looking the cattle, grazing, in fields of fresh clover. The farmer's wife pulled grass from her flower garden that was in full bloom, and the squirrel over head munched on fresh mulberry's just waiting for the new crop of nuts to develop so he could store them for a cold winter. The raincrow gave her mournful call, hoping for a shower that would cool the glen on the hill behind the barn. A wood pecker perched on the side of a dead pecan tree making sounds that could be heard in the distance. Shadows grew smaller as the sun began to fall slowly behind the horizon. An Owl called to it's mate to signal the dawn of night on this summer day
